A Busy, Fretful World

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

AMERICANS are fleeing from Hankow afraid of being murdered. China, with her four hundred million people afraid of being bullied and murdered by a few white people scattered on her coasts.

In County Kildare, Ireland, where people are virtuous, the district council forbids "sitting out dances." That is part of a campaign to stamp out immorality. "Dance or go home."

The lovely Princess Tarhata Kiram, daughter of the Sultan of Sulu, graduated from the University of Chicago, then entered the harem of Datu Thail, important Sulu dignitary, as Datu's fourth wife. Bobbed hair, rolled stockings, short skirts, all the glories of American freedom, are wiped away by tradition and environment.

In the old fable, the pretty little girl changed into a beautiful princess. She forgot her new ways when a mouse ran across the dining room floor.

RUSSIAN husbands and wives will be interested in their mail from Reno. For a divorce you simply notify the authorities that you want it, then send word to your better half through the postoffice, and that settles it. You are divorced.

NEW YORK CITY alone reported one dead, 13 made ill, by alcohol yesterday. And yet if the government distributed alcohol without poison in it, that would put the nation back where it was in Thomas Jefferson's day—on a drunken basis. Only, instead of whisky, the national drink would be plain alcohol of the worst kind.

Some think light wine and beer would be better than wood alcohol. But that would not be prohibited.

MEN talked across the Atlantic Ocean yesterday, from New York to London, at a cost of $25 a minute. New York said, "Hello, London, are you there?"

AT least three warship cruisers are to be built, perhaps six. Perhaps we shall have fighting planes also. If so, the new cruisers will at least make fine targets for fliers of some other country one of these days. If war broke out our navy would have sufficient intelligence to camouflage all its floating ships and hide them away in rivers and harbors. Then we'd keep them through the war.

YOU learned that Italy has arranged with Albania to bottle up the Adriatic of the Balkans and control an important seaport. Perhaps you wondered why dear old Britannia was so quiet while that was going on.

LEARN now, in the shadow of the Alps and frank League of Nations, a little deal was made by which England gets from Italy something she wants in Abyssinia in return for allowing Italy to rule Albania, supposed to have her independence guaranteed by the League of Nations.

YOU can rent a little apartment on a boat floating on the water in New York for $3 a month.

That won't surprise the Chinese, of whom millions are born and live all their lives on boats for a rental of less than $3 a year.

The ancestors of 100,000 years ago lived on platforms out over the water, with gas below, for the catching, safe from savage animals on the land, and paid no rent at all.

GOVERNOR SMITH of New York is now a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1928. He announced it semi-humorously in a recent address. His followers in New York City announced it vociferously at an enthusiastic banquet.

Other Democrats that would like the 1928 Democratic presidential nomination will find in Governor Smith an opponent that understands politics and the American people.

DYING, as far as we know, is the only permanent thing we ever do. That makes the electric chair and those that make it interesting. They are not superior samples of dying men, but afford our only opportunity, away from the battle field, to study men at the point of death.

THREE negroes were shot into the next world in New York's Sing Sing prison just before morning yesterday. One was caught trying to kill himself and was not allowed to cheat the electric chair. To face death is more difficult than merely to die.

ANOTHER of the three, just before he died, expressed a wish to strangle himself to suicide, saying, "If I could get hold of that towel, buddy, I would squeeze it around your neck and save the executioner a job."

The man was rather sentimental, urged friend in trouble to lead a good life hereafter.

All Hope For Reprieve of Coshocton Murderer Vanished

Columbus, Jan. 8—All hope for an executive reprieve for Robert F. Coshocton murderer, vanished this afternoon when Governor A. Donahey and the state board of pardons remained deaf to pleas of Attorney Clyde Burklew, Thompson's counsel.

Thompson is scheduled to die between 10 and 11 tonight for the murder of 10-year-old Gertrude D'Ostroph, July 20, 1925.

START MOVE TO END CIVIL WAR IN NICARAGUA

Suggest American Intervention Between Sacasa, Diaz Factions

SAY GOVERNMENT WILLING

Navy Takes Steps To Prevent Gun Running to Nicaraguan Rebels

Washington, Jan. 8—Peace moves to end the civil war in Nicaragua between the Diaz and Sacasa forces may shortly be made, it was learned here today.

Suggestions are known to have been advanced for American mediations between the opposing factions with the object of ending hostilities and comprising the political differences.

While the Diaz element holds the upper hand politically, due to American recognition, the Sacasa faction is clearly in the military ascendency, having won a series of military victories and drawing to within striking distance of Managua, the Diaz capital.

This government, it was indicated today, would not averse to playing the role of mediator. Officials said the entire object of American intervention was to obtain peace and if it can be accomplished by peaceful discussion so much the better.

TAKES STEPS TO STOP GUN RUNNING

Washington Jan. 8—The navy has taken steps to prevent gun running from Costa Rica to the Nicaraguan liberals, it was learned today.

The U. S. S. Galveston left Corinto, Nicaragua, for San Juan del Sur, which is near the Costa Rican border. Earlier reports that the Galveston was chasing a gun runner in the gulf of Fonseca, 70 miles north of Corinto, were discounted.

VEILED WARNING TO MEXICO

Washington, Jan. 8—The traditional American "big stick" has been taken from its shelf and polished up for possible use anywhere below the Rio Grande, Mexico included.

This view was universally accepted in Washington today in the wake of developments of the past 48 hours, which have included the concentration of 15 warships and 5,000 men in Caribbean waters and the positive announcement from the White House that the administration is prepared "to protect American interests wherever threatened."

Inasmuch as President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg consider that nowhere are American interests so threatened as in Mexico, the White House announcement was regarded on every hand as a thinly veiled warning to the Calles government. It was directed at Nicaragua, but aimed at Mexico.

To Impress Mexico

Further evidence that the administration's present vigorous policy in quelling the Nicaraguan revolution is in reality a demonstration of American power to impress Mexico City was furnished today by an analysis of the fighting strength which has been concentrated in Nicaraguan waters—within easy striking distance of the east coast of Mexico, where most of the American oil fields and large interests are located.

There are six light, fast cruisers, seven destroyers, a submarine tender and a mine sweeper now adjacent to Mexican waters, carrying a fighting complement of 5,000 marines and bluejackets.

If Nicaragua constituted the sole concern of the administration, it was pointed out, a mere fraction of this imposing force would be sufficient to take care of any eventuality, for there are but little more than 5,000 combatants on both sides of the Nicaraguan revolution.

Summon Counsellor

A couple of gunboats and a company of marines have handled many Central American revolutions in the past, it was pointed out today. Yet for this one in particular, which is considered no more serious than a dozen of its predecessors, the American government has concentrated a force not incomparable to that which "took" Vera Cruz in 1913.

Arthur Schoenfeld, counsellor of the American embassy in Mexico City, has been summoned to Washington. He is due to arrive here by Jan. 21, the date on which, under Mexico's new land and petroleum laws, all foreigners who have not complied with the laws are due to relinquish control of their properties.

It is considered probable that the Nicaraguan revolution can be quelled without the firing of a single American shot despite the imposing array of ships and men which the American government has sent to that troubled little country.

To Extend Zones

The process is to be, according to information here, for Admiral J. L. Latimer to extend the "neutral zones" as rapidly as possible and American troops take possession of these zones, disarm both the government forces under Diaz and the revolutionists under Sacasa. Eventually this process will succeed in disarming all of the combatants and leave control of the country in the hands of Diaz, which is just where the State Department wants it. Diaz

LOEB-LEOPOLD JURY DISCHARGED

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 8—Unable to agree as to the guilt of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, charged with kidnaping and mutilating a Chicago taxicab driver, a jury was discharged in circuit court yesterday when it reported to Judge Frank L. Hooper, after being out 24 hours and taking 30 ballots.

Charles Reum, the driver, asked $100,000 damages from the sons of wealthy parents and the jury stood eight to four in favor of a judgment against the two, but could get no further.

David K. Tone of Chicago, attorney for Reum, said he would be ready to try the case again when it came up in the next term of court.

"Black Face" Bandit Holds Up N. Main-st Grocer and Wife, Makes Escape With $40

White Man with Minstrel Makeup Forces Mr. and Mrs. Aleck Walter To Turn Over Store Receipts; Makes Getaway Under Threat To Shoot

Wearing a "black face" minstrel makeup, a lone bandit last night held up and robbed Aleck Walter, N. Main-st grocer, in his home adjoining the grocery and escaped with approximately $40 in currency and change while Mr. and Mrs. Walter sat trembling under the man's threat to shoot if either made a move to call police.

Although the bandit warned Mr. and Mrs. Walter to remain quiet for a period of five minutes after he made his exit neither stirred from their chair until nearly 30 minutes had elapsed. Then they called police.

White Shows

According to Walter the holdup was made by a young white man who had blackened his face. This was evidenced, Walter claims by the white skin that showed above the collar of the tan sheepskin coat the man was wearing. The bandit, likewise, forgot to blacken his hands, Walter claims.

The holdup was staged shortly after 7 o'clock, within a few minutes after Walter had closed his grocery and gone to his home located on the south side of the store.

Expected Neighbor

Expecting a neighbor to call for groceries within a short time Walter was waiting in the living-room to return to the grocery to supply his friend's needs.

Summoned to the front door by a loud knocking Walter asked:

"Is that you George?"

The man outside responded:

"No, I'm not George. I'm a colored man that wants some groceries."

Walter unlocked the door and opened it part way. Before he could close it again the man whipped out a revolver, kicked the door open and stepped inside, ordering Walter and his wife to throw up their hands.

"I want the money I saw you counting over in the store," the man demanded.

Walter told the man he had no money. He insisted that there was no money in the house.

Thrusting the barrel of his gun in Walter's ribs the bandit threatened to shoot unless the money was forthcoming at once.

Wife Gets Money

Walter insisted that there was no money, but Mrs. Walter, fearing for her husband's life went to the stairway where the money had been hidden and turned it over to the bandit.

Pocketing the leather money bag, and refusing Walter's plea to take the money but leave the sack, the man backed from the room warning his victims not to open the door or attempt to call police for five minutes.

"We were too scared to move for a half hour," Walter said today, "so we sat still. Then we called police, but they were unable to find any clews."

M'DERMOTT TO REFUSE TO ANSWER QUESTIONS

Says He Would Rather Go to Chair Than to Prison for Life

Cleveland, Jan. 8—"I would rather be cooked—electrocuted—than go to the penitentiary for life," Patrick McDermott, convicted murderer of Don R. Mellett, told the International News Service here today.

The defendant prisoner, who has lost none of his cocky mien since a jury Christmas eve decided that he was guilty of killing the Canton publisher, chatted freely with fellow prisoners in the Cuyahoga county jail, but refused to discuss the murder.

McDermott was brought here yesterday as a witness against Ben Nadel, who is charged with having harbored Pat during his three months' flight from justice.

Laughs at Court

"I'll tell 'em nothing," Pat declared when told that he is to be placed on the witness stand Monday when Nadel's trial begins. "Then maybe the judge will slam me 10 days for contempt; ain't that a giggle?"

"When a guy gets the chair, his troubles are over, but I ain't keen for going to the penitentiary for life; that's awful. It was that gang of Ku Kluxers at Canton that got me."

SQUABBLE OVER CUSTOMS

Refugees in Shanghai Tell of Stoning of British Marines

Shanghai, Jan. 8—Although conditions in Hankow are reported quieter, alarming reports now come from Kiukiang.

The nationalist authorities at Kiukiang are reported unable to control rampant hordes which are thronging through the city committing disorders.

The British nationals at Kiukiang have gone aboard a British warship and the customs officials have been given refuge on an American warship. The Japanese have taken no refuge and are safe, but fears are felt for their future safety.

Refugees Tell Troubles

Details of the troubles in Hankow are being related by the refugees who are arriving here penniless.

The Hankow disturbances arose from an insignificant squabble over customs, the refugees say. A mob gathered during the altercation and was soon running wild. British marines were landed and greeted with a shower of stones from men in the mob, who took refuge behind women and children and massed upon the hund. A bayonet charge by the marines was futile due to the refusal of the marines to bayonet women.

The Hankow Club, in Chinese territory, was looted on Tuesday and British residents and stores outside of the concessions were also rifled, the refugees said.

Looting Continues

"Wholesale looting by soldiers and mobs continues in Hankow, according to advices.

Other reports state that virtual general evacuation by foreigners of Hupeh and other Coutonese controlled provinces is under way.

Missionaries and others at outlying points are gathering at river ports awaiting transportation under escort to Shanghai.

More than 300 refugees arrived in four boats today from Hankow, but 20 of them women and children. They were without personal belongings or clothes other than those they wore.

A commission of five nationalists has been created in Hankow to govern the British concession and has nominal control over the nationalist troops and the labor union pickets, but according to reports this control is very lax and the pickets and soldiers are doing as they please, obeying general orders only when it is convenient to obey them.

Wilson Protests Vare's Election To U. S. Senate

Former Secretary of Labor Files Formal Protest Against Seating of Successful Republican Candidate from Pennsylvania, Charging Fraud and Corruption

INVESTIGATION TO FURNISH PROOF

Pennsylvania Contest Must Follow Hearing of Charges Against Smith of Illinois; Senate Now Has Two Fights for Seats To Hear

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—William B. Wilson, former secretary of labor, this afternoon filed a formal contest challenging the election of William S. Vare, Republican, as a senator from Pennsylvania.

The Wilson petition paved the way not only for a battle to bar Vare from the senate but laid the basis for a fight to seat a democratic senator from the Republican stronghold of Pennsylvania.

Announcement of the filing of the contest was made on the floor of the senate by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic floor leader.

The petition charged Vare was "not legally elected" in the November election and declared Wilson was chosen "by a majority of the votes legally cast."

Charges Fraud

It alleged that gross fraud and corruption had been responsible for the majority accorded Vare in election returns from the Keystone State.

Robinson declared that Wilson claims in his contest that a thorough investigation of the election will show that he was chosen as United States senator by the qualified voters of Pennsylvania and specifically reserves the right to amend his petition to state additional facts, "an investigation now being in progress."

The petition charged Vare had admitted spending $71,000 "of his personal funds" to secure his nomination and that "this constitutes a violation of the corrupt practices act of 1925, which limits expenditures of a candidate for senator in every case not to exceed $25,000."

Would Hold Ballots

Robinson introduced a resolution calling for the impounding of the ballots cast in the Pennsylvania senatorial election and declared the ballots would have to be saved by the government because of special elections. He charged specifically that Vare's election was due to the manipulations of the corrupt political machines in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

The reasons prompting Wilson to contest Vare's election, it was said, came from the revelations of irregularities in the Philadelphia election.

An investigation conducted by the impartial committee of 70, it was pointed out, already has revealed that in numerous districts Wilson received no votes at all, even though the law compelled the employment of three Democratic election officials in each district. As a result of the investigation, a number of election officials were arrested.

To Force Fight

The anti-Vare group in the senate meanwhile planned to keep their fight in the foreground, even though the senate first will have to consider the contest against Senator-designate Frank L. Smith, republican, of Illinois.

According to rumors reaching republican leaders, Smith will come to Washington within 10 days to present his credentials, thus opening the fight to deny him a seat in the senate.

One of the first steps in Wilson's fight to oust the senate will be to impound the votes cast in Philadelphia last November. This action would be taken, to insure a recount by the senate. It can be done, by the adoption of a resolution, the senate having power to take charge of ballots cast in any senatorial election. Vare announced several weeks ago that he would not oppose this step.

BOY HURT WHEN HE FALLS UNDER SCHOOL TRUCK

Ward of Children's Home Slips as He Tries To Hop Onto Bus

Fred Phelps, 11, a ward of the county is in a serious condition at the Children's Home as a result of injuries suffered last Wednesday afternoon when a wheel of a school truck passed over his body at Pleasant School.

Internal injury, which could not be detected at the time of the examination after the accident, has developed into peritonitis, it was said today by Capt. Carl F. Dietz. The boy was given attention immediately after the accident, but there was no evidence of an injury, and he did not complain until yesterday. A doctor was summoned and the boy was found to be suffering from internal injuries, as soon as he made known that he was injured. He is being cared for at the home, it being believed best not to move him to the hospital.

Driver Held Blameless

The driver of the school truck, one of several school buses which carry the children from the home to Pleasant School, has been held blameless in the accident. According to the story which other students told officials young Phelps tried to get into the bus after it was in motion. He had hold of the rear end, slipped and swung around the side of the rear end, his body falling under the wheel which passed over his abdomen. The truck was stopped at once and the boy helped to his feet. He showed no signs of being injured and was taken back to his home where he was examined. No injury could be found then, and it was not until yesterday that he was found to be injured.

The boy has been at the home for more than a year. He has been attending the Pleasant School with the rest of the children of school age, riding back and forth daily in the school buses, which carry only the children from the home.

FRACTURE OF WRIST SUFFERED BY DECKER

County Auditor Slips on Icy Pavement as He Steps from Car

R. C. Decker, county auditor, suffered a fracture of the bones in the left wrist last night when he slipped on the icy pavement as he stepped from a street car at E. Center and Carbert-st. Decker lives at 131 Carbert-st. He had waited late at the office and it was dark when he went home. He missed his footing on the ice when he left the street car, and his weight, falling on his left wrist, snapped the bones.

An X-ray was taken of the injury when he was brought downtown to a doctor's office where the fracture was set. He was taken back to his home where it was reported he was resting comfortably today.

Decker will leave the county auditor's office in March, to be succeeded by Earl V. Thomas.

Cincinnati, Jan. 8—A suit asking for $25,000 damages against Rupert A. Lands and H. V. Thornton, both of Cleveland, was on file in common pleas court here today with Walter E. Chile, (fourth) promoter, named as the plaintiff.

Chile claimed in his petition that the two Cleveland men must be held responsible for the alleged misrepresentations which, "led Thornton and Thomas to go up in the plane."

Chile, who says he was a close friend of the pilots, charges that the plane was not in condition to make the flight and that Lands and Thornton knew it. He claims that the ship was overloaded with gasoline and that the plane's engine was not functioning properly, but that the pilots, [illegible]

Landis Expected to Clear Accused Baseball Players

DECISION WILL BE ANNOUNCED ON WEDNESDAY

Players Stand Pat on Denial of Risberg-Gandil Scandal Charges

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

Chicago, Jan. 8—Charles "Swede" Risberg and Arnold "Chick" Gandil, "black sox" conspirators in the 1919 world series, were blacker than ever today in consequence of their attempt to tar with the same stick a score or more major leaguers whom they accused of helping to "fix" a Chicago-Detroit series in September, 1917, and by the same token, the accused survived the hearing of the charges, ending last night, with reputations unimpaired.

In consequence, it was regarded as inevitable today that Judge Landis would give Eddie Collins, Ray Schalk, Donie Bush, Clarence Rowland, Bill James and all others named in Risberg's bill of particulars a clear record when he announces his decision next Wednesday.

A conviction was out of the question after James, named as the Detroit pay-off man, took the stand and told a straight, lucid convincing story, supporting the contention of all other defendants that the disputed "pool" raised was a gift to the Detroit pitchers for winning a series from Boston.

On Way Home

"Home James"—meaning Bill, not Jesse—was Landis' edict as the testimony was finished last night and Bill was on his way back to California today, well satisfied that he had given an excellent account of himself on the stand. The remaining 30-odd witnesses likewise were excused.

Gandil's testimony proved something of a disappointment. He made a good witness, but his alleged revelations hardly bore out his prediction that they "would shake baseball to its foundations."

They merely elaborated a bit on the testimony of Risberg, but added nothing of great importance.

Indeed, Gandil fell down badly when he tried to pass the lie to Eddie Collins' statement that he had contributed to the fund only after a thorough investigation of its purpose, as proved by a notation in his checkbook under date of Oct. 16, 1917.

Produces Checkbook

Gandil forced Collins to produce the check stub, and, after a minute examination by Chick's lawyers, their silence was tacit admission of defeat.

James, on the other hand, virtually absolved Howard Ehmke automatically and his ready account of his distribution of the fund carried the ring of truth. Even the fact that he couldn't recollect just what player had received the final $5% of the $20 fund indicated a lack of a carefully pre-arranged story.

His testimony that Ehmke had received no part of the pool killed Risberg's charge that, at the pay-off, James had said, "Howard is hollering for his money," and James' further remark that Risberg had suggested that Ehmke go unrewarded because he—Risberg—"didn't like that guy anyhow," attributed a motive to the Swede for making such an allegation against Ehmke.

Call Buck Weaver

Buck Weaver's about face on Risberg and Gandil likewise did their case practically no good. Neither did Buck's support of Oscar Vitt's convincing testimony that the traveling bag Weaver gave him at Christmas was a customary gift between friends of long standing.

Even the faux pas of Robert Hasbrouck, former recruit first baseman of the White Sox, in introducing evidence of a hitherto unmentioned White Sox meeting in Boston failed to injure the defense. It failed primarily because Gandil gave every evidence of not remembering the occasion himself but the further fact that rookie players seldom are admitted to club meetings relegated the incident altogether beyond the pale of importance.

In brief, there was a lot of shooting but the guns backfired and only the marksmen themselves were injured.

ASSEMBLIES HELD IN HARDING HIGH SCHOOL

D. M. Burson and Rev. A. W. Swan Address Local Students

Assemblies were held in both halls of Harding High School yesterday morning.

"Juanita," sung in unison, opened the East Hall assembly.

The students were urged to support the basketball team in its tilt with Lima, following which E. H. Shade introduced the speaker, D. M. Burson, director of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Burson spoke upon "The Kind of a Boy or Girl I Like," stressing three points, bravery, energy and loyalty.

Mr. Burson declared that it is not the boy or girl getting grades who necessarily succeeds, but the student who tries his best. His talk closed with the recitation of two poems, "The Builder" and "The Man I Shall Never Be."

West Hall assembly opened with yells led by Robert George, Robert Templeton and Dick Zachman.

Joe Rinnert, president of the senior class, introduced the speaker, Rev. A. W. Swan of the Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church.

Reverend Swan's address stressed the importance of education and during it he explained the history of the bible.

"We did not acquire education for ourselves, it was bought for us," he said. "You are not your own, you are bought with a price."

He compared the customs and modes of our ancestors with those of the present day.

Mr. Marshall then dismissed the assembly with a few announcements.

TWINS CONFUSE SPECTATORS

In a recent tennis tournament at Washington Seminary, Atlanta, Ga., Jenny Lind Mather and Mary Frances Mather, not only won the doubles championship but met in the finals in the singles. Unless the photographer became confused, Mary, at the left, won the title. The judges were confused most of the time as to who was leading.

Week of Prayer Brought to Close in Marion Churches

...L MEETINGS ...WELL ATTENDED, ...PASTORS SAY

Topics of Various Sermons Outlined by Council of Churches

...Week of prayer services which ...were held in Protestant churches in ...all sections of the United States each ...night of this week closed a week of ...well-attended success here last night ...when services at the Lee Street Presbyterian Church in charge of Rev. H. ...Weckmueller, pastor of First Reformed Church, and at the Emmanuel Baptist Church under the direction of Rev. O. L. Groves, pastor of Central Methodist Church. All meetings were well attended by those residing in the communities nearby as well as by habitual church-goers of all denominations.

Reverend Weckmueller gave a sermon on the subject "Our Young People" in which he declared that the younger generation is the same, fundamentally, as it was many years ago; that although in appearance the boys and girls of today have changed, still underneath there beats the same heart of gold and breathes the same spirit of love." He warned young people to beware of recklessness and irresponsibility, and to adhere to the Christian influences of the church and school.

Reverend Howard Speaks

At a well-attended service at the Wesley M. E. Church Thursday night, Rev. W. H. Howard, pastor of the United Brethren Church, discussed "Christ, the Good Shepherd," saying that the good shepherd knows his flock and cares for them in such manner that it becomes the sheep to know of and recognize their shepherd. He drew his text from St. John, chapter 10.

Rev. C. L. Allen, pastor of Calvary Evangelical Church, who conducted the prayer service at Trinity Baptist Church Wednesday night, gave a splendid talk on the subject, "Nations and Governments," taking his text from Acts 17:26-27 and from Deuteronomy 6:4-5, "God has made of one blood all the nations." Reverend Allen said, although we seem more advanced it is not by our own merits but because we have been favored by God. We are still following the commandments given to Israel in that early day and we must continue to do so to retain our position as a great nation."

"The Blood-Bought Church of Jesus Christ" was the unusual subject of the sermon preached by Rev. A. G. Adriance, pastor of Fite Memorial Church, at the services in the Oakland Evangelical Church Tuesday night. "The church is the greatest institution for good in the world today," Reverend Adriance said, "it has elevated the position of man wherever it went. We must repent of our sins, become Christians, be ready for a reconciliation with God by remembering that it is God's will that churches unite in prayer; the example Christ set for His followers; and that God has promised to be present with His people."

Topics Outlined

"To nothing, say nothing you would be like to be found doing or saying when Jesus comes" was the theme of the powerful sermon given by Rev. A. W. Swan, pastor of Forest Lawn Church, at the first of the weekly prayer night services Monday night at the church of the Brethren. He announced his subject as "When Jesus Comes."

Topics for the various sermons at each service were outlined by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Local services were directed by a committee headed by Dr. B. L. George, pastor of Epworth M. E. Church.

First A Man

DR. J. D. DARLING

Pastor of Wesley M. E. Church.

EARLY one morning a prominent man met a prominent physician.

"Doctor," he said, face shining and eyes sparkling, "I have down at my home the finest babe you ever saw. It has beautiful black eyes, black hair and——"

"That is fine," said the doctor, "if that babe is a boy and grows into a genuine man, it will be great. If it is a girl and becomes an outcast I, sincerely pity you." First a man. First a woman. Pope said much when he wrote, "An honest man's the noblest work of God"—far more than Ingersol when he said, "An honest God is the noblest work of man."

We are much given today, in our schools, colleges and universities, to the making of scholars, forgetful that the first job is the building of genuine manhood. So it is. The thing of first importance is not a mechanic but a man. The great thing is not a preacher. The world is not dying for great preachers, great laymen, great officials, but great men. Out of great men the preachers, teachers, laymen, officials, singers and executives may be created. Schools neither create men nor fools, they develop them.

Some time ago a man, speaking of a recent college graduate, said, "Our universities make a lot of fools, don't they?" "Yes," I said, "they do not. They just develop what they get, what is sent to them." It matters not what you would know, you must have first of all a real man, a real woman. Do we ever have city or state or national officials who fall short of what is expected of them? The first lack is no manhood. This applies to every line of life and service.

Given a man, something worth while may be made. You may create if you will, what you will, if you have a genuine man. That is the first essential. The first great need of the world is genuine men, real women. If we may but have these in sufficient numbers we may improve cities, clean up communities, give to the world new ideals, the ideals once given to Christ.

Give us men with faces toward God and the better things of life and we shall find better men out of which God can create better preachers, teachers, editors and laborers in every line. And each shall help lift the world up closer to the ideal God has for it.

Caraway Springs Surprise in His Choice for Nominee

Suggest Senator Bayard of Delaware as Democratic Candidate

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—If Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway of Arkansas had sugested Calvin Coolidge as a Democratic presidential possibility of 1928 he couldn't have astonished Washington much more than he did by mentioning Senator Thomas F. Bayard of Delaware as a likely Democratic nominee.

THOMAS BAYARD

Caraway predicted some time ago that a dark horse would get the nomination but nobody dreamed he meant Bayard.

Bayard can hardly be described as a dark horse. A dark horse is a horse so obscure that nobody knows anything against him because nobody knows anything about him at all. Bayard's a senator. His father, his grandfather, his great-grandfather and his great great-grandfather were senators. His great-uncle was a senator and his father was secretary of state.

A horse like that isn't much of an unknown.

THE present Senator Bayard's father really was a presidential possibility about 40 years ago.

A Democrat was one thing in these days. Today's he's something radically different, generally speaking. But not in Delaware. There he's the same old thing. Consequently the present Bayard, exactly like his father politically, even yet is a suitable Delaware senator.

But national?—

Well, at a rough guess, he ought to make as strong a Democratic run as John W. Davis did.

THE mystery is how Caraway happened to pick him out.

What the Arkansan said was that Senator Jim Reed of Missouri and Bayard were his two selections.

Reed wouldn't so guess a choice for Caraway to make. He really is a possible Geographically he'd make a natural nominee. He's a wet and Caraway's a dry but otherwise they have much in common. Both are liberals. Both are from the agricultural west. Their political and sectional sympathies run along parallel lines in most respects.

But Bayard wasn't in the running until Caraway thought of him—if he is yet. He's an ultra-conservative. He's as different from Caraway as chalk is from cheese. He's from a powee little eastern state. He's a wet, too.

CARAWAY says Al Smith and William G. McAdoo eliminated themselves at Madison Square Garden for good.

He says Gov. Ritchie of Maryland has only his wetness to recommend him—which doesn't recommend him to Caraway. He considers that Reed and Bayard have good points to offset their wetness, but not Ritchie.

He quotes Gov. Donahey of Ohio as admitting that he doesn't know enough to be president, and agrees with him.

He doesn't ount E. T. Meredith of Iowa at all.

That narrows the list down to Reed.

UP to this point, even though you may dissent from Caraway's conclusions, you must recognize that he reasons rationally, and as many capable political dopesters do.

But Bayard!

When the Arkansas senator announced his Delaware fellow-zono's name as his alterative to Jim Reed's he sprang a surprise.

Washington Springs, S. Dak., rises to remark that all this talk about bobhaired grandmothers is the "bunk." The town boasts of a Grandmothers' Club with fifty-five members, only five of whom wear their tresses in flapper style.

In recent years many women throughout the United States have taken up the breeding of pedigreed dogs as a business and have found it to be a very profitable line of work.

ARMING FOR GUNMEN

Unable to cope with the gunmen of the city because of inferior weapons, the Chicago police department has equipped itself with 30 machine guns in its attempt to minimize crime. With the new weapons the police are now as well equipped as the gunmen. The photo shows detectives receiving instruction in the use of the new guns.

LEAPS TO DEATH

Cleveland Man, Believed Despondent, Takes Life

Cleveland, Jan. 8—The body of Robert J. Crandall, 23, who leaped to his death from the fourteenth story of an office building here last night, will be sent to the home of his father, Professor Charles E. Crandall, of the University of Illinois, at Urbana.

Crandall, who has lived here for the last three years, is believed to have been despondent over a physical defect which caused him to use crutches.

One American actress of wide celebrity never keeps the photograph of a friend in her room, believing that to do so would be to invite bad luck to either the friend or herself.

Southern Violin "Champ" Challenges All "Comers"

YORK, S. C., Jan. 8—The world has its Fritz Kreisler, master and artists who draw the bow; Maine has her Mellie Dunham, who climbed to fame on the shoulders of Henry Ford; Georgia has her "Fiddlin'" John Carson, whose wizardry in playing melodies of the past is known the country over; almost every state has her champion violinist. And South Carolina has her favorite—John Joseph Jefferson Robinson, or simply "Three J" Robinson, as he is known in music circles from the Piedmont to the coast. He is 70.

He challenges Mellie Dunham and all comers to meet him in a contest for national championship.

Robinson has been proclaimed champion because he has won so many contests that none now can be found in his native state who will compete with him.

Robinson's reportoire does not include classical concertos, but he plays countless sturdy and soulful melodies of the past—pieces that have been handed down from one generation to the next. He is in demand for virtually every country dance that is staged in the upper tier of counties in South Carolina.

He is a natural violinist, self-taught and trained. He began to play when he was seven, using a gourd instrument constructed by his father. It was strung with shoelaces. It was on this crude instrument that Robinson laid the foundation for the brilliant technique that has made him pre-eminent among South Carolina fiddlers.

Robinson now owns a violin that is valued at several thousand dollars. It is his constant companion. He calls it "Mary Ann." He says he would like an opportunity to try issueson "Mary Ann" with Mellie Dunham. South Carolinians believe he would win a competitive event.

BELIEVE AUTO THEFT BAND IS BROKEN UP

Confessions of Two at Middletown Result in Arrest of Six Others

Middletown, Jan. 8—Breaking up a band of auto and accessory thieves today is believed to be complete by police following the arrest of eight men, some of whom police say were members of the band which also extends its activities to house burglary.

The arrests followed several months of [illegible] investigations by officers. Their research work resulted in the [illegible] of two men Wednesday night. Putting these two through a severe examination, the officers gained confessions which resulted in the [illegible] of the six.

The men now being held are:

Here, in a price class where average standards have been the rule, is now offered a car so far beyond all expectation that comparisons cease to exist.

Seven superb models styled as low priced cars were never styled before and offering such marks of fine car distinction as full crown one-piece fenders, bullet type lamps and "fish tail" rear deck modeling! But due to economies of tremendous production plus the vast resources of General Motors, Chevrolet also announces striking price reductions on other models.

TEXAS FARMERS OPPOSE LAW TO GOVERN COTTON

Legislative Remedies To Control Acreage Planted Meet Small Favor

[illegible] Tex., Jan. 8—Among the [illegible] remedies suggested to aid the [illegible]ation, is legislation which [illegible] the amount of acreage [illegible] farmer might plant to cotton. [illegible] of this plan have pointed [illegible] if it were enacted and its [illegible]day determined, it would [illegible]nsist and most equitable [illegible] solving the cotton over-pro[illegible] problem, which this year has re[illegible] near-ruin to Texas cotton [illegible].

Balanced Farming.

"Many small farmers already are [illegible] under a "balanced" system of [illegible], which this would disrupt."

Several of the replies voiced a somewhat general fear that increased fertilization and bringing into cultivation of acreage and other idle land, might increase cotton production rather than reduce it, which is the intention of the proposed law.

"The replies received from the farmers and business men of the 48 East Texas counties canvassed is indicative of the feeling of the state at large toward the proposition, as East Texas Chamber of Commerce officials believe it is would appear that the proposed cotton control law, which will probably be introduced in the Fortieth Texas Legislature next month, is due to come extremely rough riding.

AMERICA'S BILL FOR COFFEE IS 375 MILLIONS

Country's Requirements Have Steadily Increased for Many Years

Washington, Jan. 8—America's tremendous coffee consumption is illustrated by commerce department information showing normal annual imports of approximately 1,500,000,000 pounds.

At an average retail price of 25 cents a pound, said to be conservative, the country's coffee bill this year will be about $375,000,000.

The country's coffee requirements have been increasing steadily for many years. Experts say it is doubtful whether any of the increase is due to prohibition.

Fully two thirds of all the coffee entering world trade comes from Brazil, according to a report made by M. L. Bynum, tropical products expert. Half of the 14,226,000 bag crop of Brazil in 1924 came to the United States.

Brazil Coffee First

In the five year post war period the proportion of Brazilian coffee entering the American market was 62 per cent of the total imports of United States. Columbia ranked second with 15 per cent, other imports originating in Venezuela and Central American countries.

Although the United States is by far the greatest individual importer of coffee, its annual per-capita consumption is exceeded by that of each of the Scandinavian countries, Bynum explained.

In the post-war period Norway, Denmark and Sweden each had an annual per capita consumption of 15 pounds of coffee, while the Netherlands and United States averaged a little less than 12 pounds. In prewar days the Netherlands had the largest annual per capita consumption but during the war the Dutch turned to tea-drinking, accounting for the coffee decline.

France ranks next to United States as a coffee importing nation and has a per capita consumption of almost 10 pounds.

"The total value of world's coffee shipments," Bynum said, "averaged around $412,000,000 annually during the last five years.

Imports Increase

"Imports to United States during this period had an average annual value of $193,000,000. It is interesting to note that in point of value coffee was third among the raw materials imported into United States in the 1921-1925 period, being outranked only by raw silk and sugar."

In the averages for imports of coffee in the last few years is seen an increase of almost 42 per cent over the pre-war period of 1909-1913, rising from 6,828,000 bags valued at $94,232,000 to 9,682,000 bags valued at approximately $193,000,000. Shipments to United States account for nearly one-half of the total world exports, while in the pre-war period they were less than 40 per cent.

About a year ago Secretary of Commerce Hoover had a great volume of correspondence from alleged champion coffee drinkers. Hoover almost was faced with the task of selecting the American champion, a job somewhat out of his line.

The championship never was decided, however.

FRANCE BURDENED

Debts More Than $18,000,000,000 Chamber Figures Show

Paris, Jan. 8—France is burdened with a total debt of almost half a trillion francs, according to reports made to the Chamber of Deputies during the recent budget discussion. With the exchange rate at par this would total almost 100 billion dollars.

At the present rate of exchange the total debt is approximately $18,500,000,000. Of this amount eleven and a half billion dollars is internal indebtedness, the remainding seven billions being almost exclusively external debts contracted during and after the war.

The annual interest charge is approximately $840,000,000 or slightly more than half of the annual budget.

BRITISH GOLFERS TO PAY FIRST VISIT TO ARGENTINE

London, Jan. 8—Two British golfers will shortly pay a visit to the Argentine for the first time in the history of British golf. Aubrey Boomer, the famous professional, and his brother Percy, will sail on January 14 for a three months' visit, as the guests of the Mar del Plata Golf Club. They will play their first match at Santos.

Dr. Eloise Meek of Bellefonte, Pa., died recently. She was a graduate of Pennsylvania state college and the Woman's Medical College in Philadelphia. She practiced in Johnstown for several years, spent two years as medical missionary in India, and later two years in Alaska in government work. Dr. Meek also did settlement work in New York.

Mrs. Jessie D. Hodder, superintendent of the state reformatory for women at Sherborn, Mass., uses work, sunlight, color and music in the system which she applies to the inmates. Her theory that the psychological value of color in the lives of these women shut off from the world led her to set them to work making flags during the world war. "The women are here to use their time, not serve it," she states.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT NICARAGUA STARTS ON PAGE 1

was elevated to the presidency by the State Department.

The greatest possibility of "trouble" is admitted to be in the efforts of Mexican gun runners to get arms to the Sacasa forces. Sacasa is recognized as the constitutional president of Nicaragua by the Cuelles government of Mexico.

If American naval forces intercept a Mexican vessel carrying arms to Sacasa, an open clash may result that will have far-reaching effects.

Breaks with Coolidge

Mexico, if she chooses, can stand stiffly on her prerogatives as a sovereign nation and insist on being permitted, under international law, to sell arms wherever she pleases. The belief prevails here, however, that the Calles government will proceed cautiously to avoid open hostilities.

Meanwhile, the senate revolt against the administration's "big stick" policy showed no signs of abating today.

Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, has broken absolutely with the administration. And he is supported by the republican insurgents and by a considerable number of the democrats.

A storm is brewing in the senate which may be expected to break at any time.

REPORT DECISIVE LIBERAL VICTORY

Mexico City, Jan. 8—A decisive victory at Las Grietas, Nicaragua, over the conservative forces of President Diaz, of Nicaragua, was reported here today in cablegrams from headquarters of the Sacasa forces.

The cablegrams, addressed to Dr. Zepeda, representative here of the Sacasa regime, asserted the action at Las Grietas, which is 30 miles from Corinto, on the Pacific slope, resulted in a "complete triumph" for the liberals.

Many prisoners were taken, 300 rifles, six machine guns, seven wagon loads of provisions and 70,000 rounds of ammunition were captured, the dispatches said.

General Noguera Fonsec, commanding the Diaz forces, was reported to be in flight.

FRENCH MAKE AIRPLANE OF "FLYING WING" KING

Paris, Jan. 8—A new French aviation company has just produced a large twin-engined machine of the "flying wing" type. It is constructed entirely of duralluminum and steel, and can be used either as a bomber or as a passenger-carrying aircraft.

The cabin, instead of being long and narrow and situated in the fuselage, is formed in the middle part of the single plane itself where it is believed that it creates less resistance. It is also more spacious and more convenient in shape. The load carried by the machine is nearly 3,000 pounds.

U. S. PICKS NEW MEXICO FOR POTASH DEPOSITS

Santa Fe, N. M., Jan. 8 — Search by Uncle Sam for a potash deposit is expected to be undertaken soon near Artesia, in southeastern New Mexico, following announcement by the United States Bureau of Mines that a drilling site has been designated to that vicinity.

The drilling site was recommended for potash exploration after a joint investigation by the federal departments of commerce and interior, which was prompted by determination to develop a sufficient supply of potash in this county in order that the United States will not be too dependent upon importation of the product.

Admiration of others—Approval of self.

The man who elects to wear a suit from Smith's finds his choice admired by his friends, because of its unmistakable character of style correctness. But of more importance is the fact that he wins his own approval in lasting satisfaction through long wear and durability. Priced economically.

All Loading Records Broken.

The railroads of the United States handled a greater volume of freight in 1926 than was ever moved by them in any corresponding period. This was established when complete reports for the past year were filed by the carriers, Wednesday, with the car service division of the American Railway association.

The statement put out by the association from Washington shows that the loading of revenue freight for the fifty-two weeks period ended December 25, amounted to 53,309,544 cars, an increase of 2,085,492 cars, or 4.1 per cent., over the best previous record, established in 1925, and an increase of 4,775,211 cars, or 9.8 per cent., over 1924.

"This record freight movement," the report says, "was handled without transportation difficulties, congestion or car shortage, excepting in a few instances of a temporary nature. It also moved with the greatest expedition and dispatch ever attained by the carriers."

Save two, the volume of all the chief commodities moved in 1926 was greater than the volume of the same commodities handled in 1925. The exceptions were livestock and forest products. Of the former, 1,603,322 cars were moved in 1926 against 1,635,610 in 1925 and the movement of forest products dropped from 3,736,824 in 1925 to 3,654,432 cars in 1926.

The movement of grain and grain products advanced from 2,805,731 in 1925 to 2,406,111 cars in 1926; coal from 8,905,384 to 9,928,059; coke from 623,331 to 692,291 cars; ore from 3,011,640 cars to 2,184,893; merchandise and less than carload lot freight from 13,192,591 to 13,457,847, and miscellaneous freight from 18,813,041 cars in 1925 to 19,382,759 cars last year.

The peak loading week of the year ended on October 30, the total being 1,216,432, which exceeded by 91,994 the peak week in 1925.

The reports show that the loading of revenue freight exceeded 1,000,000 in twenty-seven weeks, the largest number of such weeks ever reported, exceeding by seven the number in 1925, and the grand total of 53,309,644 cars was a weekly average in excess of 1,000,000 for the entire fifty-two weeks of the year for the first time on record.

To us the remarkable phase of the situation is that the wonderful record of 1926 could be accomplished with no apparent extra effort by the railroads of the United States which were little better than junk heaps but a few years ago when returned to their owners by the government. Such an accomplishment, to say nothing of the reconditioning of the roads and the restoration of their rolling stock, should settle for all time the relative merit of government and private ownership. Let us hope that the roads will never become the playthings of politics again.

Electricity for Isolated Farms.

The United States department of agriculture has been experimenting, looking to the lighting of the buildings of the farmer. There is no occasion for experimentation, of course, in behalf of the farmer whose place is along an electric light and power line or within such distance of one that he may connect up with it without unreasonable outlay. The effort of the department has been directed to the needs of the isolated farmer, isolated in the sense that he is too far away from an electric line to take advantage of it, the farmer who yet has to rely upon oil for lighting purposes and undergo all the risks that go therewith. To put such a farmer on a lighting equality with the farmer whose place is on or close to a line has been the purpose of the department's study and experimentation.

Some farmers who are not in position to utilize current from a line have resorted to gasolene-driven generators, but the desire of the agricultural department was service to supplant oil lighting which wouldn't require materials which were not at hand on the farm. Hence it resorted to windmills, which were far more common along our highways twenty or thirty years ago than they are today.

The department found that, unless there was an unsual amount of water to pump for stock watering or other purpose, the windmill running the ordinary pump would generate and store in batteries, if run five hours every other day, enough electricity to light the average farm home, barn and other outbuildings. If such were the demands on the mill for pumping purposes that it could not be used at least five hours in every two days for generating electricity, the answer was a second windmill.

But early in the department's experimentation it was found that it took a ten-mile or stronger breeze to run a windmill effectively for generating purposes and hence its next quest must be directed to the probability of such a breeze every two or three days in the Great Northwest, the Middle West and the Southwest, where the great majority of these isolated farms are located.

The department's experimentation in this direction was a happy one. It found that periods of three or more days when the wind did not blow at ten miles an hour for a total of five or six hours were very rare and came, when they did come, late in the summer; that during the winter months, when the lighting demand is greatest, the air currents are most dependable. There wasn't a locality among all those in which experiments were made where there wasn't ample wind power during the fall, winter and spring.

The department has not yet given out any figures on the cost of installation and operation between the cost of home-made and purchased current as yet, but it has gone far enough to show that electric lighting is possible on any farm through utilization of air currents for power and that the fire hazard resulting from the use of oil lamps may be omitted, to say nothing of the improvement in the quality and power of the illumination.

We have noted in type in discussion regarding the radio, that it is not impossible that the time may come when man will draw currents for illuminating and power from the sky and earth as he now draws messages. This may be a long time away. It may never come. But whether or not it comes electric lighting for the farm far removed from a power line is now demonstrated to be attainable. With running water, central heating, electric light and power, the telephone and the radio in the home, the time must surely be near at hand when there will be a marked movement back to the farm.

We assume that the curving of the length of a street car, presented in one of Mr. McCutcheon's cartoons in a recent issue of the Chicago Tribune, to facilitate the turning of street corners, was a bit of artistic license.

"Reindeer meat," says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "doesn't yet seem as frequent as rabbit, notwithstanding all the Alaskan pictures in the rotogravures." We have been told that it is a characteristic of the reindeer to go prancing about over the snow and ice, any maybe all of 'em have run themselves down by prancing about until they are in no condition for butchering.

We do not profess to know the merit of Secretary of State Kellogg's course in Nicaragua, but in the light of Senator Burton K. Wheeler's attack on it as well as the secretary, we are naturally inclined to assume that it's all right.

Some of the so-called statesmen down in Washington, who have gone off at half cock in their criticism of President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg for sending warships and marines to Nicaragua, evidently have overlooked the fact, if they ever know it, that we have treaty right and obligations in that country which we are bound to preserve and enforce.

Pat McDermott denies that he attempted to commit suicide, claiming that the twisted blanket found in his cell had been used in an attempt to get a little exercise. Any exercise such as could be had by means of a twisted blanket, it seems to us, would be mighty tame for one of the active habits of Pat.

Vagrant Verse.

A PORTRAIT.

She wears remembrance softly, and a trace—
Dusk-violet, rose-ivory—of slim
Warm-eyed Madonnas in a cloistered place
Lingers about her, beautiful and dim.

Today she spoke . . . and I saw Dante pass,
Deep-shadowed were the gardens where he trod,
Sweet-petaled with spent roses lay the grass,
And it was dawn . . . and Giotto talked with God.

There has been singing on the hills today,
And Botticelli walked with me apart.
Speaking of things we knew . . . and on the way
To Florence, like a lily at her heart.

We saw the tower of Santa Croce, far,
Dream-lifted to the sky. Then evening spread
A whitened road beneath a wistful star . . .
And I was glad . . . and followed where it led.

I think I had been beauty-starved before
I heard her voice, and in a tone's caress
Came suddenly upon the open door
Of a too-long forgotten loveliness.

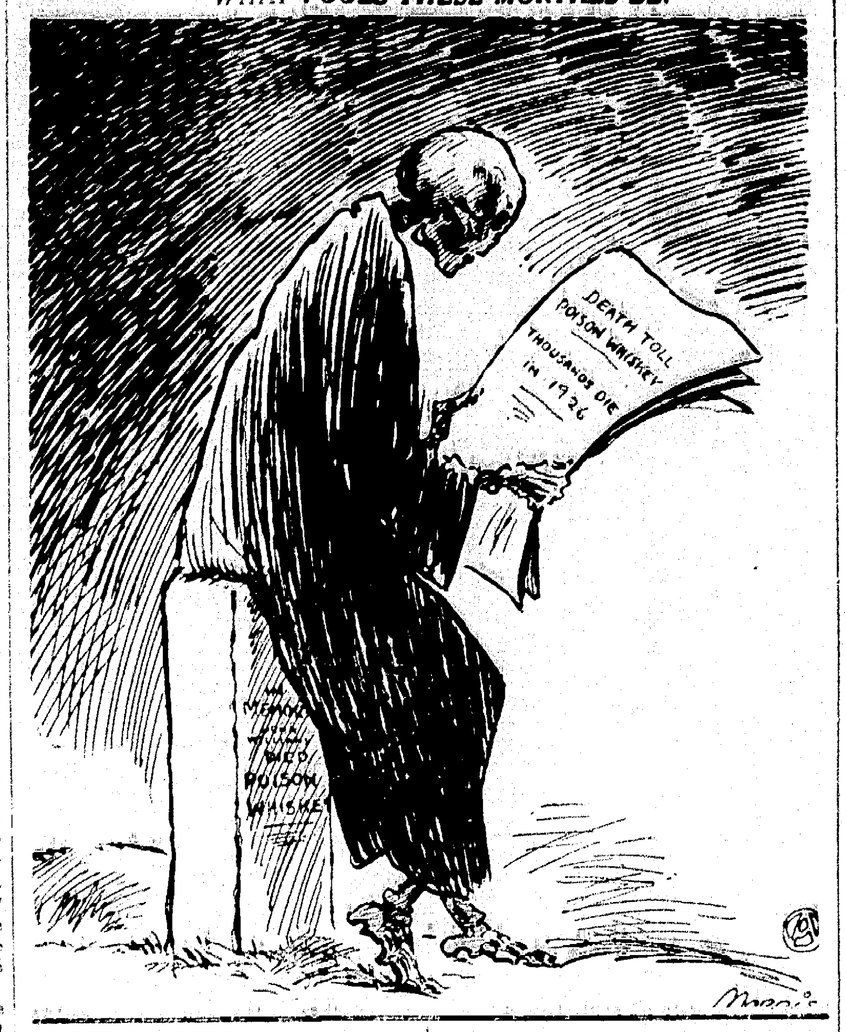
"WHAT FOOLS THESE MORTALS BE."



Healthy Body Houses Clear Brain.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.

Not long ago the papers carried a report of what the Yale Divinity school students have accepted as a code of ethics. The preamble to this [illegible] that a healthy body brings [illegible] and temperate.

[illegible] to state what it is [illegible] Every human being [illegible] to be [illegible] Every [illegible] to be [illegible] The [illegible] of each one [illegible] The [illegible] is to keep [illegible] as a healthy [illegible] of [illegible] development [illegible] to keep physically fit as it is to [illegible] his intellectual and spiritual capacities. [illegible] mind in the world housed in a weak and [illegible] body will do little to promote the spiritual [illegible] of the community.

One must choose between brief years of violent [illegible] and a long career of constructive undertaking. The professional man who neglects his body and its daily needs will find his results less and less effective. His years of usefulness will be curtailed by an early breakdown.

Personally, I am so impressed with the sacredness of health that I can not but regard carelessness in the care of the body as an unholy act. I could not respect a minister who neglected to care for his physical welfare. On this account I applaud the action of the Yale divinity students.

Much of the illness doctors treat is the result of laziness. A man too lazy to get out and "stretch his bones" is breeding trouble for himself and a fat fee for the doctor. A minister will not be giving honorable service to his parish unless he takes part of the time he controls for systematic daily exercise.

No matter what your profession or trade may be you are not doing justice to it and to your family unless you keep fit. We may well adopt the Yale creed and apply it to our lives.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

A habit of mind is just as serious as a physical habit and just as hard to break. For example, to get in the habit of thinking you can not meet new people, that you can not speak in public, that you can not play a game, that you can not sit through a play—all these things are serious. Victims of such habits deserve some constructive criticism.

Then there is the habit of thinking you are old or getting old. The habit of thinking you are young is just as easy to form. And it will contribute to your happiness, not break it down.

There are two people known to this writer, both well over seventy-five years of age. They would be spoken of as old people by those who do not know them, but they are not old because they have not formed the habit of thinking they are. They never reminisce. They tell no stories of the "good old days." They want to know about the latest acts of the city council and the state legislature. They like the society of young people. They read the comic page in their favorite newspaper.

Habit is a life saver for those who have intelligence to use it right.

Are you laying up contentment for the future? Are you making investments of kindness and thoughtfulness and love which will pay dividends tomorrow?

For instance, what plans are you making for grief? How are you fitting yourself for sorrow? There is one deep and permanent satisfaction that will console us in bereavement. It is the abiding satisfaction that will come from the consciousness of having done all we could to make life sweet for the one who has passed beyond our present call.

To make a dear one happy now is laying up treasure for the years to come. No price is too high to pay for such an investment.

"Can storied urn or animated bust
Back to its mansion call the fleeting breath?
Can honor's voice provoke the silent dust,
Or flattery soothe the dull, cold ear of death?"

The perspective of history increases the importance of the elder Roosevelt. He was once defined as a blend of St. Vitus dance and the Ten commandments. His tradition is now established for all time. Joseph Fort Newton, able New York preacher, says: "Roosevelt became a legend while he yet lived." That is high plaudit. Of whom else might it be said?

On the Pacific Slope.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

Los Angeles, Jan. 8—Salaries out here sound like telephone numbers. I'm always afraid some one will ask me about mine. Salaries are so casually discussed. So and so came out here broke and is now getting it weekly in five figures. Pay checks are chief topics of talk.

The change from a hall bed-room to a palace on the hill is an everyday occurrence. I was invited to spend the night with a former newspaperman, who slaved with me on the outer rim of a copy desk in the days when dollars were extremely coy and reluctant. I am one of those who like to travel light.

And I figured my equipment would be ample with the upper section of a pair of pajamas and a tooth brush. These I folded up and put in an envelope and stuck in my overcoat pocket. My friend lived in one of those Georgian Tudor houses you can't see from the street.

The drawing-room could only be circled on a bicycle. Picture the embarrassment when an imperious valet rapped at the chambers to which I had been assigned to unpack my luggage. And there I stood before him with a silly look and the "luggage" in my pocket.

Hollywood—I'll have more to say about it next week—is responsible for these gigantic salaries. The movie industry has played an important part in the city's amazing growth and sensible citizens are keen to realize it.

That colony is largely responsible for the magnificence of the shops displaying jewelry, shoes, millinery and other articles of personal adornment. People who have come from comparative obscurity to sudden wealth are not likely to haggle over prices.

Hollywood is a suburb that takes quickly to fads—health and otherwise. Just now it is indulging an orgy of bran "cures." They are being stuffed with bran like so many geese. They tell of one world famous and sensitive artist who is keenly distressed by death. When one occurs his world crumbles. It hits him all in a heap that here he is at the top of the world today, but tomorrow he may be snuffed out. He was lunching when news came of Valentino's passing. He paled and pushed dishes away from him. A few moments later with his hat pulled far down he was trudging up Hollywood boulevard with a huge sack of bran under his arm—deep in the resolve to lead a simpler and saner life.

I lunched with another famous man allied with the movie. About his plate in semi-circle was a row of various little liquor glasses. It struck me: "This is going to be good." But I noticed the servant had neglected to put the glasses before my plate. Between courses the great man quaffed the contents of this glass and that. I learned later, they contained mineral water.

"The jury says you're guilty," he repeated loudly in his ear.

"In what degree?"

"There is no degree in a still case."

"Guilty all over, then?"

"Yes."

"Hay?"

"Yes," shouted the lawyer.

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS.

You probably know guys that just like to beef about the price of anything. They don't seem to get the hang of selling and buying at a price that is on the tag. Well, it was a guy like that that was howling to his dentist one day about the big bill the dentist had sent him. This guy's wife just stood in the corner and listened to him. She was used to it, and still it made her tired. Finally, the dentist said he'd come down, since the customer was hard up, and make it $30 instead of $60. The guy thanked him and walked out with his wife. When they were out in the hall, the woman says:

"Now what made you carry on that way so long?"

"Well, he cut the bill in two, didn't he?"

"Yes, but you know as well as I do that you don't intend to pay the bill anyhow."

"Sure I don't. But I'm a kind-hearted man, and I don't want this dentist guy to have such a big bill always owin' to him!"—Copyright, 1927.

FARMERS' NIGHT BILLS ARE ARRANGED BY WEAO

Advice of Agriculturalists Sought To Arrange Programs for Tuesday Nights

In the planning of the Farmers' Night programs, which run throughout the year on Tuesday night, the questionnaires which were distributed by WEAO, Columbus, in December have been consulted to learn in what the Ohio farmer is most interested. The programs are being built in so far as is possible with these facts in mind.

In the matter of lectures, the farmers were asked what subjects would be of most interest and benefit to them. Their preferences, in the order voted, were for poultry, crops, soils, home economics, general farming, rural economics, dairying, horticulture. Series in poultry and crops have already been given on the Farmers' Night programs this season and other subjects in the indicated list are scheduled to follow. Home-economics talks are given each morning at 11:10.

Choice of entertainment also brought out some interesting conclusions. Old-time music, which includes old familiar heart songs as well as old-time dance tunes, was by a large majority most popular, 64 per cent having given it the preference. Classical orchestra was the next choice with popular songs following. Jazz, so popular in certain communities, was a very poor last choice, only six persons having voted for it, as compared with 158 for old-time music.

GREAT LOVE AFFAIRS WILL BE BROADCAST

New Series To Be Presented by WJZ, Chain Stations Sunday Nights

In a new series of broadcasts to be given from WJZ and the stations of the National Broadcasting Company's Blue Network, WBZ, KDKA and KYW at 8 o'clock, Sunday nights, the first of which will be heard on Sunday, Jan. 9, the great love affairs, both those which are of fact and those of fiction, will be recalled to the memory of the listeners.

In opening this series, the great love affair of Spain, that of Paul and Francesca, written by Stephen Phillips will be portrayed. The story is full of the luxuriant atmosphere of old Spain and abounds with exotic love scenes between the hero and heroine. The parts will be played by two experienced Thespians, who have appeared many times before the footlights of Broadway theaters. There will be a musical setting supplied for the scenes by a large string ensemble.

RUSH RECOVERS

Member of Famous Team Appearing On WLW Programs

Ford Rush, of the famous team of Ford and Glenn, is up and about again after a serious attack of pneumonia. He and Glenn now are at Cincinnati where they are appearing regularly at WLW, the Crosley station, with their "Lullaby Time" and other features.

The pair of entertainers made their first appearance at WLW a few days ago and they will be connected with the station indefinitely.

They will be on the air at noon, every week day, with a "dinner bell" feature intended especially for the farmers. Every night except Friday, Cincinnati's silent night, they will put on the nationally famous "Lullaby Time." This will be at 8 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time. Sunday nights they will be on the air at 7:30 and 10 o'clock with "Hymn Time" and every week they will put on [illegible] programs for shut-ins.

National Broadcasting Co. Head Says Radio to Become Self-Supporting Industry

1927 Will Do Much To Bring Broadcasting Forward, Merlin Hael Aylesworth Claims; Attention Will Be Directed to Better Programs, Opinion

Merlin Hall Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., which owns and operates WEAF and manages WJZ and WRC, gives his views on radio broadcasting for the new year in the following, which was made public today:

"The year 1927, I believe, will do much to bring broadcasting forward as a distinct and self-supporting industry in the radio family. For the first time, perhaps, radio broadcasting in the United States untied from the apron strings of outside support will find itself squarely on its own feet.

"Broadcasting is now breaking through the chrysalis of experiment to a permanent, self-sustaining service to the home. The phenomenon, if present indications are valid, will be accomplished.

"First, by better programs. For those who have learned through experience the wide acceptance of radio broadcasting by the listening public know also the attention value of a good program. The results will be evident during the present winter season, when commercial, educational and social organizations will vie with one another to put the best possible program on the air.

Longer Season

"The second factor will be a longer entertainment season on the air. The technical advances made in the art of radio broadcasting and in the manufacture of receiving devices are such that fair broadcasting results may now be assured for the whole year round. Those who entrust their message to the air now know that they can safely extend their broadcasting season.

"Third, will be the practicable solution of the artist's problem. Thanks largely to radio, the United States has become a great nation of music lovers. Broadcasting, far from decreasing, has definitely increased the opportunities of the artist. The demand for broadcasting now is and will continue to be for artists with greater repertoires, for novelties on the air, for more and better entertainment. And if the broadcasting structure is made entirely self-sustaining there will be sufficient support for every type and character of entertainment program.

Systems

"Fourth, will be the establishment of broadcasting systems, through wire interconnection or by other means, that will operate more or less upon a national basis, as distinguished from the regional services given by over 500 separate broadcasting stations in the United States.

"The National Broadcasting Company is dedicated to all four purposes. As a nation, we lead the world in the day-in and day-out quality of our broadcasting programs, in the number of our broadcasting stations, in the size of our radio industry, and in our development of the radio art.

Lack of Regulation

"It is true that the picture here is marred for the time being by the lack of police regulation in the air which has resulted in a vast amount of station interference. But the situation is far from hopeless. The courts are now engaged in adjudicating the fundamental rights of the broadcaster and the legislative branches of our government undoubtedly will agree sooner or later on measures of regulation.

"With these problems solved, however, the United States will have created a broadcasting system incomparably better and greater than any that now exist."

A Belgian woman has done her share in boosting the census of her country by giving birth to six sons in one year —the first set of triplets in January and the second in the following December.

Takes Lead in National Laugh Month Campaign Effective During January

"Laugh and the world laughs with you" was written long before radio was dreamed of but it is truer than ever nowadays.

WLW, the Crosley station at Cincinnati, has taken a lead in the National Laugh Month Campaign, which is being sponsored from coast to coast during January. There will be plenty of laughing and good nature in the studio and it will go out on the air literally all over the world.

Living

CHECK!

Loving

"THIS is the season of my discontent" grumbled the sweet young thing. "Sniffles and as sore throat is bad enough with me having to park feet that fairly ache for the feel of the open road beneath them under an office desk and submit to the caging within four walls of a spirit that, taking wings, would carry me into far off sunlit spaces. But add to the woe of having to work when I don't want to, the necessity of doing work that I don't like and you have the sum total of my misery."

The sweet young thing's plaint overheard, set us to thinking. A fragrant case of the square peg in the round hole again! Another sensitive nose upon a cruel grindstone!

LABOR of love is never lost. When we enjoy a task we do it well, and pecuniary gain is no more certain than the profit to health and happiness.

Conversely, there is no more vicious thief of contentment, no more insistent a disturber of physial peace than uncongenial work. Enforced labor corrodes the soul, lies an oppressive weight upon the heart.

Why endure what so easily one can cure?

Maybe the sweet young thing didn't know it, but statistics declare that in government service alone there are about 1,700 different kinds of work and that in almost all of the 1,700 women may engage at will.

Police force, secret service, postal department. With credit milady serves on all of them.

Banker, broker, portrait painter. Women succeeds at each.

Interne, editor, lawyer, college president. Woman serves the world in each capacity, and it please you!

Butcher, baker, candlestick maker, dyer and cleaner. A Miss by any of these titles may be an expert.

Why should the sweet young thing suffer? An hour of self-analysis, a few weeks of intensive training, a climbing out of the slough of dissatisfaction, and thes quare peg may find its own little parallelogram.

Arthur Brisbane for Aviation Secretary—Will Rogers

Rope Artist's Impressions of Our Desert

ference in Writers' Vision Equals Gap Between Salaries

BY WILL ROGERS

[illegible] to read kinder like one [illegible] read Arthur Brisbane's [illegible] when he is crossing the [illegible] and Desert. Arthur always [illegible] a marvelously interesting [illegible] looking out of the win- [illegible]. Now I haven't got as [illegible] as Arthur, or my eyes [illegible] or something, for it [illegible] long to tell you what I [illegible] of the window of this [illegible]. If I cant describe it [illegible] why I can wait till late [illegible] and look out and still [illegible] it. It will still be [illegible] where you are. But [illegible] what makes Mr. Bris- [illegible] high salaried man, is that [illegible] the difference in how [illegible] ahead he can see than I [illegible] things he is able to see [illegible] at all for me.

[illegible] tell you just what the [illegible] Desert was and where [illegible] runs in a few miles east [illegible] Ohio, along about Ash- [illegible] Then you keep passing [illegible] right on through Toledo. [illegible] Knight blacksmith shop [illegible] make the monotony for a few [illegible] right there, and then you get [illegible] desert from there into [illegible] Michigan, where the train stops [illegible] to point out the birthplace [illegible] Kay Larsner. There is a giant [illegible] that marks the spot. They [illegible] with Gin to keep it alive.

[illegible] don't hit much vegetation [illegible] Gary, Indiana. That is [illegible] town that is responsible for the [illegible] speeches of Judge Gary. [illegible] and Bethlehem, Pa., have been [illegible] for two set speeches that [illegible] through and stood the gaff [illegible] banquets, as follows, "From [illegible] I am and from my observation [illegible] I judge the coming year should [illegible] the most prosperous that we have [illegible] remembered."

Shooting at Chicago

If somebody invents something that [illegible] cheaper than steel and Steel ever [illegible] a slump, why there is going to be [illegible] two of the most useless after dinner [illegible] speeches on the market that was ever [illegible] unleashed. Then she is barren again [illegible] after you get out of this optomism till [illegible] you hit Chicago. You can tell before [illegible] you get to it. You will hear the shooting. Pull down your blinds and turn [illegible] your ventilators. You will have to [illegible] change trains there, as no train has [illegible] ever made up its mind to go through [illegible] there. The first Railroad that ever [illegible] does take you through there without a [illegible] change I would rather have stock in [illegible] than in General Motors. There is [illegible] no more reason why a person in a [illegible] hurry to get from one end of our continent to the other should have [illegible] to change cars in Chicago than there is [illegible] in Rockford, Ill. The Santa Fe has a [illegible] new train on now that cuts the time [illegible] down. You leave Chicago in the night. [illegible] You cant see, and you dont miss much [illegible] till the next morning.

Why Wagon Was Covered

Out on the banks of the Kaw there is Kansas City. Just a western Town set right up on some hills. They have a new Depot in place of the old Grip exchange they used to have down in the holler there. Kansas City is a kind of a tradin' Post for Oklahoma, and all that part of Kansas that has anything to trade. If Jim Reed is not there when you go through there is no use stopping. But if he is in the village that day, go and ask him what he thinks of the Government as it is operated today, and it will be well worth your time to stay over a day and listen to it. That's where the "Covered Wagon" started from and the reason they had it covered was so the people inside the wagons couldent see where they were going. Why if they had been able to have looked out they would have jumped out before they got half way across Kansas.

The Emporia Gazette

The next sign of any kind of habitation in any way after you leave the Kaw, is, in a few hours you look out of the window and you will see an old fellow setting around a printing Press under the shade of a Juniper tree. Well, that is William Randolph White, and he is trying to get out the Emporia Gazette. It's what the Arizona Kicker used to be. It's pretty baren around there outside of a school they have there that they call "Normal". But I doubt if it is.

Switch Called Gallup

Well on the way west from there there just aint nothing unless you look off to the south where you can just see the fertile vegetation of Oklahoma. Things grow just about to to where the line of Kansas starts in. We kept a-going. Just sage brush, and cactus and Mosquito bushes. On down into New Mexico to where a fellow had some Navajo Blankets to sell. It was called Albaquerque. This fellow's name that has ran the little store there was Fred Harvey. Right along about this little section house of Albaquerque why we commenced to run out of the desert and gradually things begin to get green and pretty and by the time we got to another place where there was a switch where you passed trains, things was just a booming from a vegitation standpoint. You are out of the desert. The switch was called Gallup. Then on across Arizona. Arizona is the only state that has two Senators to one Congressman. What a lucky thing for us they don't all have two Senators to one Congressman! Just think if ninety cant ever agree, what would a thousand do? They are doing a lot of argument over who is going to dam up the Colorado River.

For "Clean Pictures"

We have lived since 1492 without it being lammed, but it looks like it needs dammimg. Los Angeles hasent got enough water for Movie peoples swimming pools, and if we are to have "Clean Pictures" why this dam is almost necessary. Will Hayes is for it, and they have got to give him what he wants or he won't manage their campaign in 28. Well, the trip from then on across Arizona and east of Los Angeles was just one Oasis after another. You can just throw anything out and it will grow there. I like Arizona. She is a real cattle Country, and the old big stock pens along the railroad sho look good. Europeans all left the main line to go see the Grand Canyon, but Americans went right on out to Long Beach. They are waiting till they save enough to go to Europe and really see something worth while.

It's a Great Trip

But it's a great trip, out here and everybody should take it. As I say, after you get through the Desert and uninteresting part from Astabula to just west of Dodge City, I would like to give this story a real Brisbane touch and I can believe I can do it, and be in keeping with my own poise. Here I have been on this train for days, and I should have been able to fly from New York out here in two days. I wish we could take all our Government to Europe, including the President, the Senate and Congress and just show them for a minute what the rest of the world is doing. We are always yapping about being in such a hurry in this Country and it takes us longer to get anywhere than anybody in the world. I am in favor of making Arthur Brisbane Secretary of Aviation. Coolidge is in favor of economy in all our various defense. If we have a war we will vote to "have a cheap war."

Suggestions and Recipes Given Here For All Three Meals

Creamed meat or fish on toast is always a satisfactory supper or luncheon dish. If you do not care to cream the meat use leftover gravy, thickened, instead. Most meats are better cooked in their own juice than in a white sauce. Veal and chicken are good cooked with the milk sauce.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Yum Yum Pineapple Salad

Heat two crushed pineapple, add juice of one lemon and three-quarter cup of sugar, stir until sugar is dissolved. Soak two tablespoons of gelatin in one-half cup cold water ten minutes. Add to hot mixture. When cool and beginning to set, add three-quarter cup grated American cheese and one-half pint cream beaten stiff. Mix thoroughly, put in mold and leave in cold place until firm. Make a dressing by mixing two tablespoons each of finely chopped celery and green peppers, one-half cup mayonnaise dressing and a few drops of onion juice. Remove salad from molds, cut in slices and serve on lettuce leaves with dressing.

SUGGESTIONS

New Apple Pie

Try this apple pie for a change. Line a deep pie plate with rich crust. Cover bottom with a layer of peeled and quartered apples. Sprinkle generously with sugar and cinnamon and, pour over all a cup of sweet cream. Bake slowly until top is a rich caramel color.

To Cut Fur

When you wish to cut fur, place the fur side down and cut the skin with a safety razor blade. This is better than cutting with shears, as it does not cut the fur.

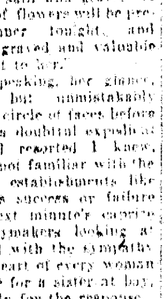
Quicksands of Love

BY ADELE GARRISON

AS Jack Leslie advanced to the side of the night club hostess and stood waiting for her announcement, I caught my breath in resentful grudging tribute to the undeniably good looks and grace of the young wastrel. No wonder, I thought to myself comprehendingly, that a young girl so ingenuous as Mary Harrison had kept his image in her memory.



For I had not been deceived by Mary's artless explanation of her swoon when Dicky had told us of the masked dancer whose nightly appearance with Jack Leslie had been causing such a sensation among Broadway habitues. I knew that her strength of nerves and body had been weakened by her arduous work under Philip Veritzen's direction, and I guessed that her emotions had been more captivated by the fascinating cabaret entertainer than we had thought. Hearing of this unknown dancer who, according to Dicky's version had brought Jack Leslie and Noel Veritzen to blows, had been too much for her overwrought imagination, and she had lost consciousness for a few seconds.

This was the explanation of her swoon which I was giving myself as I looked at the lithe, graceful figure of the night club entertainer. Yet I knew that such an explanation entailed an assumption that she was emotionally interested in the dancer to the point of fierce jealousy of him. Surely, the few meetings with Leslie, of which I had known, had not been sufficient to bring a brainy girl like Mary to so absurd a pass. Or—had there been meetings of which I knew nothing, carefully as Katherine and I had tried to guard our young charge?

But the hostess was speaking with a forced enthusiasm that but ill hid her anxiety for the success of her evening.

"Mr. Leslie has proposed," she began a bit hesitantly, "that instead of his usual programme, he select partners from among you for a number of short dances, and that then you will all vote upon the woman who has acquitted herself with the most skill and grace. A beautiful bouquet of flowers will be presented to the winner tonight, and later a suitably engraved and valuable bracelet will be sent to her."

As she ceased speaking, her ginger, outwardly brave, but unmistakably harassed, swept the circle of faces before her. That it was a doubtful expedient to which she had resorted I knew, even though I was not familiar with the general routine of establishments like hers. But that its success or failure rested upon the next minute's caprice of the blase merrymakers looking at her, I realized, and with the sympathy which rises in the heart of every woman worthy of the name for a sister at bay, I waited breathlessly for the response.

It came overwhelmingly at the end of a second's astonished silence, in another burst of handclapping and laughing calls of approval to the woman standing in the center of the floor, and a sudden look of joyous relief succeeding the worry in her eyes, she swung around in a half circle, throwing kisses extravagantly to the crowd. Then she laid her hand upon Jack Leslie's arm and walked with him toward the musicians' gallery.

To reach it they had to pass our table, so that we were the nearest of all the revelers to Jack Leslie when young Noel Veritzen, eluding the grasp of his fellow musicians, who evidently fathomed his purpose, hurdled the rail of the musicians' gallery, and grasping Leslie by the throat, pushed him against a pillar with the gasping demand:

"Tell me what you have done with her, you dog!"

CHAPTER EIGHT

I was staggered by the immensity of the operations revealed. The Secretary read a list of the more important seizures of drugs illicitly traded which had been brought to the notice of the League during the previous year. It was certainly impressive. He mentioned as much as fifteen tons of Persian opium seized in cases on an island off the port of Hongkong, and three and one-half tons of cocaine concealed in cases of soap shipped from a Japanese tramp steamer at the Piraeus, and a large quantity of heroin confiscated by customs officers at San Francisco. From the ensuing discussion it appeared that these seizures, large though they were, formed an infinitesimal portion of the drugs handled in the illicit markets of the world. The American representative laid before the Committee astounding figures of the profits derived from the surreptitious sale of these products in America. Mention was made of an "inner ring" controlling the illicit market and making staggering profits amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars every year out of the vice and weakness of human nature.

It was at this stage of the debate that my attention was suddenly arrested by the use of a term that sent my thoughts flying way back to the events of the preceding evening. The American member made several references to "snow" and I found that he was alluding under this description, to cocaine, and that he was using what was evidently a designation current among addicts and in the trade. I realized, with a sense of being inevitably pursued and obsessed by strange events, that Signor Marve, my visitor of the morning, had during his conversation at the Kursaal made an obscure reference to "the biggest snowfall yet." The discovery was startling in the extreme and I am afraid I ceased to follow very closely the discussions around the Committee table, my brain beating about to find some possible connection between the reference to snow and the mystery of the pocket handkerchief. I was still puzzling over the question when the Committee rose.

I started to walk to my hotel for luncheon, and, stepping out of the garden gate of the Secretariat, found myself next to the secretary of the Committee, who was walking in the same direction.

He proved to be a most polite and enthusiastic official, and we walked most of the way back to my hotel together, while he explained the difficulties with which the League was faced in combating the traffic in dangerous drugs. I asked him in particular about the "inner ring" to which allusion had been made during the recent discussion.

"Every Government is aware of it," he said, "but so far none of them has been able to track down any of its members. The illicit market in these drugs is a very easy one to control, and there is a ring which has more or less cornered the supply. It ridiculous the prices and makes enormous profits. It has, in fact, made a corner in illicit cocaine and morphia, and we even speak traces of its activities in every direction. It is believed that in the United States alone it turns over at least a million dollars every day."

"But surely," I protested, "you must know who is directing it."

"Nobody knows", he replied. "The police of several nations are trying to find out. It has agents everywhere—some of them notorious criminals—but the principals have never yet been traced."

We parted at the end of the walk, and, handing me his card, he hoped I would call and see him before I left Geneva.

There was another surprise for me at my hotel. Before going to lunch I went up to my bedroom to wash. I pulled up sharp at the door in blank amazement. The room looked as though it had been ransacked by a horde of monkeys. Everything was in confusion. My clothes were scattered upon the floor. Nothing appeared to have been left untouched.

I rang the bell and sent a chambermaid for the manager.

The manager was as surprised as I was. Such a thing had never happened before in the whole history of the hotel. Did Monsieur miss anything?

I had by this time found some of the more valuable of my personal effects. I had foolishly left a large wad of bills in the top of an unlocked valise, but not one of them appeared to have been taken.

The manager could make nothing of the affair. For myself, I had no hesitation or doubt whatever from the first moment of the discovery. This was the work of Signor Marve.

I went down to lunch, leaving the manager to communicate with the police. The audacity of the thing astounded me. What could there be in the mere accuracy of a pocket handkerchief that could drive a man to such desperate expedients?

I lunched at leisure, turning over in my mind what I should say to the police whom I was now determined to consult. Should I give them a description of Marve? Should I perhaps mention his reference to "snow?" Or would it perhaps be better to await further developments? I was now sure that I had not heard the last of the pocket handkerchief or seen the last of my fat friend.

I had not yet decided what to do and was still sitting over my coffee when the page boy brought me a card. For a moment I thought it might be Marve again, but on looking at it I found it bore the name of the Secretary of the Committee, whom I had met on leaving the Secretariat. On the back of it was a note in pencil:

"If you are still interested in our conversation of this morning, perhaps you would like to call at my office at 2:30 this afternoon."

I had taken an instinctive liking to this polite and able official, and I decided at once to call upon him and improve the acquaintance. I entered a taxi which was loitering by the door of the hotel and told the man to drive to the Secretariat of the League.

We drove along the Quai President Wilson, past hotels and blocks of flats, with the lake on the right. The Secretariat, as I have already said, is just at the end of the quai. I was, therefore, considerably astonished, as we approached the League building, to find that my driver, instead of slackening, increased his speed, shot past the Secretariat, left the quai, and a moment later was running down the road to Lausanne at a good sixty kilometers an hour. I tapped on the window, but he took no notice. On the contrary, he continued to increase his speed. I hammered on the pane, but without any response from the driver. The car was large and powerful, and I sat back 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

bewildered, wondering what on earth was happening. The man had presumably mistaken the address. Probably he was deaf and had failed to hear my direction, just as now he was failing to hear my fist on the window.

I was about to open the door with the object of leaning round and pushing my driver in the back, when the car with a jerk flung me to the opposite side and swung around a sharp corner to the left leading to a road which climbed steeply up the slope of a hill covered with vines. We rushed up between two small ragged hedges till, turning another corner, we stopped abruptly in the middle of a small courtyard in front of an old gray stone house facing the lake.

At the same instant two men jumped on the footboard of the car, the door was opened, and moment later they were beside me. One of the men I had never seen before. The other was Signor Marve.

"What does this mean?" I began, but before I could get any further Marve, leaning forward, clasped me round the shoulders with his big arms.

I struggled desperately, but was helpless in his grasp.

"Quick!" I heard him say, and the other man clapped a handkerchief over my face.

I was aware of a sickly smell, which I recognized as chloroform, as I sank swiftly into unconsciousness. The last thing I remember was the voice of Marve saying:

"That's enough. We don't want him under for too long."

Never well. Always tired and fagged out. Beauty tossed away by neglect. To be beautiful and to keep youth the system must be free from poisonous backwash of constipation which often causes dizzy spells. For 20 years, Dr. F. M. to Meet the demand for Oakland and Pontiac Sixes

Scarcely twelve months ago Oakland was only one of many manufacturers striving for preeminence. Today it ranks among the largest builders of motor cars in the world. Responsible for this tremendous growth have been a continuous series of triumphs resulting in a record-breaking 212% increase in business over 1925.

212% Increase

1925 Production . . 43,018

1926 Production . . 134,089

Oakland and Pontiac Sixes

With the advent of the past year, came the introduction of the Pontiac Six. So great was the demand it created, that in six months Pontiac Six production had exceeded the greatest full year record previously scored by a new make of car. And by the end of the year, with Pontiac production reaching 76,523 cars, that record had been surpassed by more than 100%! In July came the Greater Oakland Six with 77 refinements, featured by that epochal engineering development—the Rubber-Silenced Chassis. Again America paid a wholehearted tribute to Oakland engineering vision. And again, in every section of the land, Oakland sales leaped upward, necessitating these unprecedented productions of 57,566 Oakland Sixes—nearly 15,000 more than in 1925—and surpassing every previous record in Oakland's twenty years' history.

Now, with its position securely established, Oakland-Pontiac bids for new and greater heights—for over fifteen millions of dollars are being invested to provide for greater production.

This staggering sum—the combined cost of a new Pontiac Six plant, with a capacity of 1,000 cars a day and of important expansions in the facilities devoted to the manufacture of Oakland Sixes—definitely assures Oakland-Pontiac buyers of even greater value in the future. For it makes possible the employment of even more efficient methods of production—even greater precision in construction—even more exacting standards in the never-ending inspections which govern every phase of Oakland-Pontiac manufacture and which have been so instrumental in achieving worldwide good will for these two quality Sixes.

In the strictest sense, this huge investment represents more than an expression of confidence by General Motors in Oakland, great plus of design, manufacture and distribution.

It stands as a tangible pledge to the public at large that in fundamental greatness and founded values Oakland Six and Pontiac Six will continue supreme in their fields!

Pontiac Six, $825 to $875. Oakland Six, companion to Pontiac Six, $1065 to $1295. All prices at factory, Pontiac, Mich. Easy to pay on the liberal General Motors Time Payment Plan.

Plenty of soap and water—just that and nothing more—is the advice Greta Garbo, beautiful screen star, gives to those who would be fair. It sounds strange to American ears, I know, but a good soap, plenty of water, and a scrubbing brush are the best cosmetics."

OHIO YOUTH FEIGNS ILLNESS AND ESCAPES

Paroled Boy Steals Auto, but Slips from Hospital After Capture

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8—Police today were searching for Taylor Keyes, 18, of 106 Spring-st, Ironton, Ohio—and if they find him, he won't be given "another chance."

Keyes was recently paroled on a charge of stealing a typewriter from the Y. M. C. A. No sooner was he freed, according to the police, than he took an automobile and went to Baltimore. Brought back here to answer that charge, Keyes pleaded illness and was taken to Memorial Hospital. He slipped through an open window and escaped.

Police said Keyes admitted stealing the automobile and exonerated his companion, Frank Olsen, 18, of 3120 E. 133rd st, Cleveland, but the police still held Olsen today.

WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT OF AGOSTA IS STRICKEN

William F. Dutton, 68, Dies Suddenly of Heart Trouble at His Home

William F. Dutton, 68, well-known resident of Agosta, veteran railroad agent, and the father of Miss Edna Dutton, society editor of The Star, was found dead in bed at his home at 7 o'clock this morning. Death was caused by heart trouble.

While Mr. Dutton was not enjoying his usual health during the days that preceded his death, his condition at no time was considered serious and he was able to regularly perform his duties as station agent for the Big Four railroad at Agosta.

An unbroken period of service of more than 20 years as a railroad employe is brought to an end with the death of Mr. Dutton. He took up the work of station agent and telegraph operator first in the employ of the Erie Railroad, becoming connected with the Big Four company 20 years ago. He has been in charge of the Agosta station for the past 12 years. In his earlier life, Mr. Dutton followed the vocation of school teaching. He served in this capacity at Meeker, Bell's Corners and was superintendent of the Agosta schools for 10 years.

Mr. Dutton was the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Dutton and was born in Gratiot, Licking County, Ohio, April 11, 1858. He was married to Miss Ellen Jane Cone Nov. 27, 1884, who preceded her husband in death by 11 months, dying Feb. 20, 1926.

Those surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Roy W. Lewis, Bellefontaine, and Miss Edna Dutton, Orchard-st; one sister, Mrs. W. H. Holtermott, Mt. Vernon-av; one brother, F. M. Dutton, Agosta, and a sister-in-law, Miss Mary Cone, a resident of the Dutton home.

Mr. Dutton was a resident of Marion County for 45 years. He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church at LaRue.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday. Arrangements were not announced today.

CURTAILMENT OF EXPENSES IS DEMANDED

New Policy Needed If State Is To Finish Year Without Deficit

Columbus, Jan. 8—"A policy of extreme drastic curtailment in both current and capital expenditures must be inaugurated at once, if the state is to finish the year without a substantial deficit carried over in the form of unpaid bills."

This statement is contained in a partial report submitted today to legislative leaders by members of the joint legislative committee on taxation and finance.

It is apparent, from an examination of the state finances during the current biennium, that the governor and the state legislature are faced with the necessity of developing sources of additional revenue which will increase the normal revenues of the general revenue fund of the state by several million dollars," the committee's report continues.

Difficult Task

It is believed that this task will be difficult even if the present spending June 30, next without an actual deficit at the close of the task of increasing to meet future demands time, make up the during the current year difficult.

the fact that, unless an drastic policy of curtailment of capital expenditures, of current expenses inaugurated, a substantial 30, 1927, will inevita-

It is recommended of drastic curtailment effect without delay a revenue program the future needs of developed at the 1927 legislature without burfarther complicated deficit at the close of current fiscal year," the report said.

Surplus Gone

The report declared that "the state has been operating its expenditures for the current year, just closed, in excess of revenues and, in part, from surpluses from prior years, but the surplus has entirely disappeared and unless there is an immediate and drastic curtailment of expenditures, the cash will be exhausted by the end of 1927, with no means provided for several months ahead."

It is pointed out in the report that, notwithstanding appropriations, or authorized obligations, amounting to approximately for the current year, the possible amount of cash available for paying obligations incurred will total about $24,500,000.

Balance Budget

"Obviously, it will be out of the question for the state to incur obligations in an amount anyways near $30,000,000," the report reads. "At the same time, drastic curtailment all along the line will be required to confine expenditures to an amount in the neighborhood of $24,500,000."

Members of the committee expressed belief that the state budget should be planned for each fiscal period and that appropriations should be kept within the resources for the period to which they apply.

The report goes to considerable length in submitting recommendations relative to budget procedure for the state, the preparation of the next appropriation act by the legislature, and governing the budget for the fiscal year 1929-1930.

MOTHER'S DYING WISH FULFILLED; LOST SON FOUND

Howard Hendrick, as he appeared on western ranch.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Jan. 8—A mother's death at Anderson, Indiana, is indirectly responsible for the penetration of a fifty six mystery regarding the movements of her son, Howard Hendrick.

Informed by physicians that she had only a few days to live, Mrs. James Fricks, asked her son, James, to redouble his efforts in trying to find another son, Howard. Sixteen years before when the parents separated, Howard had been placed in an orphans' home. James had shifted for himself.

Howard, grown up, likewise made his own way, at one time being on a western ranch.

With a mother's dying request ringing in his ears, James, a motorcycle officer at Muskegon Heights, Mich., went to the orphan's home to ascertain who had adopted his brother, who had just become of age.

He was sent to Newberry, Indiana. There he learned that Howard had married and was living under his own name at Goshen, Indiana. At Goshen, he found his brother, who too, had searched for years to learn whether members of his family were still living.

Together they hurried to the bedside of their mother, who died peacefully a few days later. The mother had married again following estrangement from her husband, John H[illegible].

A STATEMENT

By the President of Dodge Brothers, Inc.

Within a few months, Dodge Brothers, Inc., will introduce a new line of motor cars, in no way conflicting with the market for Dodge Brothers present types, but occupying a considerably higher price field and produced in limited quantities.

Combining Dodge Brothers well known dependability with exceptional performance and striking beauty of appointment and design, these distinguished vehicles, we believe, will instantly set a new and higher standard in fine car practice.

Dodge Brothers will continue to produce their present line in maximum quantities to meet a demand which, during the year just ended, was very much the largest in their history, reaching the record total of 330,000 cars.

Patsy's Patter

Gossip and Guesses in the World of Sport

By Pat Murphy

THE baseball scandal has about run its course. The latest development is the ridiculing of the investigation by one of the large news distributing agencies, which has started probe of the famous game in 1888, which has been immortalized by DeWolf Hopper of the many wives. This angle has it that when the mighty Casey drove the sunlight out of Mudville by striking out with the winning runs on the bases in the final inning, that he had a bet, made under the grandstand, that the opposing team would win

When the sport writers of the country start their ridicule of Landis' trial, he might as well close his investigation and be satisfied with the publicity that it has brought him.

The poem which has inspired the latest "investigation" follows

The outlook wasn't brilliant for the Mudville nine that day;
The score stood four to two, with but one inning more to play.
And then when Cooney died at first, and Barrows did the same,
A sickly silence fell upon the patrons of the game.

A straggling few got up to go, in deep despair. The rest
Clung to the hope which springs eternal in the human breast;
They thought if only Casey could get a whack at that—
We'd put up even money now, with Casey at the bat.

But Flynn preceded Casey, as did also Jimmy Blake,
And the former was a lulu, and the latter was a cake;
So upon that stricken multitude grim melancholy sat,
For there seemed to be but little chance of Casey getting to the bat.

But Flynn let drive a single, to the wonderment of all,
And Blake, the much despised, tore the cover off the ball.
And when the dust had lifted, and they saw what had occurred,
There was Johnny safe at second and Flynn a-huggin' third.

Then from five thousand throats or more, there rose a lusty yell;
It rumbled through the valley, it rattled in the dell;
It knocked upon the mountain and recoiled upon the flat,
For Casey, mighty Casey, was advancing to the bat.

There was ease in Casey's manner as he stepped into his place;
There was pride in Casey's bearing and a smile on Casey's face.
And when, responding to the cheers, he lightly doffed his hat,
No stranger in the crowd could doubt 'twas Casey at the bat.

Ten thousand eyes were on him, as he rubbed his hands with dirt,
Five thousand tongues applauded when he wiped them on his shirt.
Then while the writhing pitcher ground the ball into his hip,
Defiance gleamed in Casey's eye, a sneer curled Casey's lip.

And now the leather covered sphere came hurtling through the air,
And Casey stood a-watching it in haughty grandeur there.
Close by the sturdy batsman the ball unheeded sped—
"That ain't my style," said Casey. "Strike one!" the umpire said.

From the benches, black with people, there went up a muffled roar,
Like the beating of the storm waves on a stern and distant shore.
"Kill him! Kill the umpire!" shouted some one in the stand,
And it's likely they'd have killed him had not Casey raised his hand.

With a smile of Christian charity great Casey's visage shone,
He stilled the rising tumult, he bade the game go on;
He signalled to the pitcher and once more the spheroid flew;
But Casey still ignored it, and the umpire said: "Strike two!"

"Fraud!" cried the maddened thousands, and the echo answered "Fraud!"
But one scornful look from Casey and the multitude was awed.
They saw his face grow stern and cold, they saw his muscles strain,
And they knew that Casey wouldn't let that ball go by again.

The sneer is gone from Casey's lips, his teeth are clenched in hate;
He pounds with cruel violence his bat upon the plate.
And now the pitcher holds the ball and now he lets it go,
And now the air is shattered by the force of Casey's blow.

Oh! somewhere in this favored land the sun is shining bright;
The band is playing somewhere and somewhere hearts are light;
And somewhere men are laughing and somewhere children shout;
But there is no joy in Mudville—mighty Casey has struck out

Harding High Stages Comeback, Defeats Lima

Garrett Shines as Local Quintet Overcomes Early Lead; Final Score, 33-27

"Chuck" Evans Drops in Three Field Goals During Last Three Minutes; Harding Lads Stage Uphill Fight During Entire Game, Trailing Until Final Moments

BY EDDIE SCHOZLER
Sports Editor, The Star

OVERCOMING an overwhelming lead piled up by the opponents in the first five minutes of the game, the fighting Harding High basketeers last night staged a grand and glorious comeback and nosed out the Lima Central High cagers in the fastest battle waged in the Star Auditorium this season. The final score was 33 to 27.

It was Harding's first game this season with a high school team as an opponent and, oh, what a game! Nothing was lacking to complete the evening's entertainment. Thrills, excitement and finally victory. Trailing until the final moments of the tilt the Harding High crew, fighting against heavy odds battled its way to the front before the gun cracked for the close of the tray.

It was Garrett's sixth field goal of the night that placed the locals in the lead 25 to 24 with four minutes to play and it was "Chuck" Evans' uncanny basket shooting that cinched the game for Harding. Three times in less than 60 seconds, Evans dropped the ball through the hoop at a moment when a field goal meant anything and everything for either team. Lima Central did its best to tie the score but the points piled up against the visiting team so rapidly that all chance of coming back was eliminated

"Blow Up"

Playing in the first real game of the season, the Harding High lads went up in the air in the first few minutes. The guards failed to hold their correct positions, the forwards couldn't cooperate, and the whole team looked miserable.

It was Garrett's fourth field goal coming when the score stood 11 to 1 against his team, that brought the Harding cagers back to earth. A second field goal a minute later made things look a little better and from then on it was battle, with Garrett carrying the banner

Lima Leads

The quarter ended 17 to 7 in favor of Lima and at the halftime mark the visitors were still leading, 19 to 13. But all during the second quarter the local outfit became a smoother working floor machine the boys hit the basket more consistently, and the gap between the two scores remained the same. Never did the hard fighting Harding team slack its pace, it was "full speed ahead" all times.

Harding outplayed the visiting team in the third quarter and narrowed the gap to four points, trailing only 22 to 18 with 10 minutes remaining. A basket by Gillig and a field goal by Garrett brought the score to a 22 point tie with the time keeper's watch saying five minutes to go.

Evans Goes On

It was then that Coach Compton showed his hand. Evans who had started the game but had failed to connect with the basket during the first half, was sent in to replace Gillis at forward. Gillis had already made four field goals. Haver of Central broke the ice with a free throw and Garrett led Harding over the one point lead to the 24 mark. For the first time in the game Harding was in the lead and it stayed there.

"Chuck" Evans, who had failed to connect in the first half, was the leading factor in keeping the locals on top, increasing the lead six points by cagging three field goals. The guarding of McAninch and Shults completed the work.

Heavy Odds

All during the game Harding High battled against a match working out in that had the added advantage of height in addition to the early lead Lima Central's was no slouch. It was a real team. And the victory scored by Harding was a well earned victory.

Haver and Wrigley starred for Lima Central. Haver counted 10 points and Wrigley scored three field goals.

Garrett Stars

Garrett was the outstanding Harding High performer. He dropped in six field goals and four free throws for half the points scored by his team. Gillis and Evans showed up to great advantage. Shults, after blowing up in the first quarter played a great guard game in the final half. McAninch and Rinnert also "strutted their stuff."

BIG TEN SEASON OPENS IN FULL SWING TONIGHT

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The Big Ten basketball season will open in full swing tonight with the playing of two games in as many conference ballwacks. Tonight's schedule calls for the first interconference games. The schedule is:

Iowa at Chicago; Illinois at Northwestern; Ohio at Purdue; Indiana at Wisconsin; Michigan at Minnesota.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

New York.—Phil McGraw, of Detroit on decision over Tod Morgan of Seattle, junior lightweight champion, 10 rounds. Morgan's title was not at stake. Spug Meyers, of Pocatello, Idaho won decision over Sid Barbarian of Detroit, 10 rounds. Billy White, of Jersey City, won decision over Harry Cook, of Buffalo, 10 rounds. Johnny Ryan of Waterford, knocked out Billy Dreco, of Baltimore, in the third round. Mickey Shaw, of Detroit, won decision over Joey Goodman of Richmond, Va., four rounds.

WINNIPEG WINS

St. Paul, Jan. 8.—Winnipeg took revenge for Wednesday's trimming by defeating St. Paul, 4 to 0, in an American professional hockey game here last night, thereby breaking even in the two-game series. The maroon showed a great offense and as great a defense, and were never in danger after the first period.

FOUR LEAD FIELD

Los Angeles, Jan. 8.—Four golfers, two of them veterans of many tournaments, and two others, comparatively youngsters, today were leading the field of 131 participants in the $10,000 Los Angeles open. They are: Mike Brady and Bobby Cruickshank, of New York; Charley Guest, youthful Los Angeles pro, and Ed Dudley, of Oklahoma City.

MORGAN LOSES

New York, Jan. 8.—Tod Morgan of Seattle, junior lightweight champion today was thanking his lucky stars that he and Phil McGraw, Detroit challenger, failed to make the 130 pound limit for their 10 round bout at Madison Square Garden last night. Morgan lost the decision, but not the title, which was not at stake because both men were overweight.

TRACK CAPTAIN OUT

Chicago, Jan. 8.—A severe blow was dealt the University of Chicago track team Thursday with the announcement that ill health will prevent Bert McKinney captain, from entering competition this year. McKinney is in the hospital suffering from a bladder ailment.

TWO LEADING FIRESTONES

Johnny Gant — Hal Griggs

These two men will form tough opposition for the Steam Shovel hoopsters here Monday night when the Akron Firestones play on the new shovel gym court. Gant is a forward and is one of the best floor men in Ohio. Griggs at center is fast and shifty and drops 'em from all angles.

Famous Akron Firestones Play Shovel Five Monday

FAMOUS AKRON FIRESTON—2 21

An all star cast will feature the Firestone half of the basketball performance in the Steam Shovel gym here Monday night, when the famous Akron team clashes with the Steam Shovel Independents.

George Spradlin, All Western Conference forward last year, while playing on the Purdue University team, will lead the invaders. In addition to being All-Western Conference forward Spradling was high point man. All his shots, or at least, the majority of his attempts at the basket are close in to the bank board.

Hal Griggs at center is also a great shot. He hails from Butler College and was All A. A. U. center two years ago. He is almost as good on defense as he is on offensive work.

Johnny Gant Forward

Johnny Gant, another forward, comes from Franklin College. Besides being another wonder shot, this man is a great floor worker and has a passing game that can't be beat.

Jimmy Johnson, an All Tri State forward from West Virginia Wesleyan, fills one forward position and at times is used as guard. Johnson was considered one of the best players in West Virginia when he attended school at Wesleyan.

Then comes one of the best guards in the state. Johnny Clancy, well known in Ohio basketball circles, carries that title. He plays running guard and shines at running down his man. Clancy is also noted for his ability to guard without fouling consistently.

Three More

Three other stellar performers whose names have not been learned will complete the Akron Firestone lineup. Although the ability of the other three men is not known, judging from their associates, they will be pretty "hot."

Manager F. W. Bacon announced today that the Shovel is building bleachers along the north and south sides of the court in the new gym and will be able to seat twice as many persons as before. All will have a good view of the game. One set of bleachers will be ready for use Monday night.

New Face In Lineup

Manager Bacon also announces that a new face will appear in the Shovel lineup Monday night. Bob Shea of the Kinnears has signed to play with the local team. Shea was All Ohio man two years while playing on the Ohio Wesleyan team. He was captain of the Wesleyan team two years ago.

Compton and Bacon will be found on their usual guard positions. Schaub will play center, and probably Shea and Wilson will be stationed at forwards. Bobyer will also get into the battle.

A preliminary between two Shovel department teams will start at 7 o'clock and the main go will get under way at 8:15 o'clock.

POSITION STILL OPEN FOR COACH

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The job of football coach at Northwestern university left open by the resignation of Glenn Thistlewaite has not yet been filled.

The athletic council of Northwestern after a meeting Thursday announced that several men had been considered and that a decision probably would not be forthcoming for perhaps a week.

Among the men under consideration for the post are Herbert Steger, backfield coach at Northwestern; Jesse Hawley, Dartmouth coach, Gwinn Henry, Missouri, Ralph Jones, Lake Forest Academy, Paul Schissler, Oregon Aggies; Wallace Wade, Alabama; Carl Schoughne ss, Tulane, Hugo Bezdek, Penn State; Milton Olander, Illinois.

COMPANY D CAGE MEN DEFEAT HOCKING VALLEY

Win Hard-Fought Game 12 to 8 on Armory Court

Company D 166th Infantry basketeers, Thursday night defeated the Marion Hocking Valley outfit, 12 to 8 in a hard fought game on the armory floor here. Both teams had hard luck with basket shooting.

The game was neck and neck until the final minutes and the outcome of the tilt was in doubt until the end. The Marion Hocking Valley men organized a week ago for competition in the Toledo Division League. The locals will play the Toledo Hocking Valley at the armory here next Friday.

STEAM SHOVELS BEAT EXPRESS; Y-INDUS VICTOR

Shovels Hold First Place in Industrial League Standing

Marion Steam Shovel bowlers retained their hold of first place in the Industrial League last night when they walloped the American Express Co. team in three consecutive games. Y-Indus took two out of three from the Star outfit.

The Shovels are leading the league with 33 victories out of 39 games played with Logan Gasmen right behind with 34 victories. Huper comes next with only 28 victories and 12 defeats.

The Steam Shovels had no trouble in defeating the Expressmen last night. Their total number of points for the three games was 2650 while the Expressmen were credited with a total of only 2086. Norris led the Shovels with 205 while Hunter was high man for the Express with 200 points.

The Star and Y-Indus clash was featured by the low total score of the match. Boyd was the leading and total scorer for the Y-Indus team and Thomas took high honors for the Star with 165 pins.

HORNSBY TO SIGN

Contract with Giants Said To Call for $30,000

Hornsby arrived here yesterday and immediately conferred with McGraw. Only minor details of the contract are to be worked out today, it was said.

Railway Service Cagers Will Tackle C., D. & M. in Industrial League Monday

Final Outcome of Important Game Doubtful; Osgoods To Play Hubers In Last Tilt and Business College Will Meet Commercials for Starter

RAILWAY SERVICE CAGERS 2-24

JUST what will happen Monday night when the strong C., D. & M. basketball team ties up with Railway Service in the seventh round of the Industrial League is not known and will not be evident until the final whistle blows.

Of course, it is known that the Commercials defeated the Railway Service and the C., D. & M. whipped the Commercials but, after all, what does that mean? After the upsets witnessed last week in the league, fans are about ready to give up when it comes to making predictions.

It will be the first meeting of the season for the two teams and they are both admitted to be the two strongest outfits in the league. The Railway Service crew has lost one game this season while the C., D. & M. leads all with no defeats. A victory for the Railway Service means a tie for first place for that team. A victory for the C., D. & M. means a more complete hold on its present position.

Here's Lineups

The C., D. & M. team is composed of Miller and Torrence, guards; Minard, center, and Davis and Phillians, forwards. The Railway Service has Issler and Jonssou forwards, Knukler, center, and McWhorter and Robbins, guards. That's the way the two teams lined up in their last games. Each team is composed of real basketball stars and the game will be a real basketball tilt.

The first frag of the evening performance also promises plenty of action, if we consider last week's scores as an example. The Commercials will meet the Business College in the initial tilt. Since the Commercials met defeat at the hands of Osgoods the Business College crew has a little more confidence in themselves and hopes to take a tall out of them.

Osgoods Play Hubers

Then, last but not least comes another battle. Osgoods will play Hubers.

Hubers won their first league game last week. The team was organized only a few months ago and has been rapidly swinging into shape and consider last week's victory only a starter to a successful campaign from this time on. The Huber cagers last Monday defeated the Fairfield Engineers and turned the trick with a good sized score. In fact, Hubers have turned from a losing team to a winning outfit and from now on, beware.

Osgoods Strong

Osgoods have been hitting the trail for the lead in the league during the season and knocked off the Commercial crew last week just to show the other lads that they could do it. At least, Scoop Irwin showed the others that he could do it.

With the Hubers playing basketball like they did last week and Scoop Irwin of the Osgoods hitting the bucket like he did last week, fans are promised the thriller of their lives when the two outfits clash Monday night.

The league race is gradually becoming more and more interesting, and if the Railway Service defeat the C., D. & M., all except ardent C., D. & M. supporters will go wild.

Monday's games are scheduled to start at 7:15 o'clock.

CENTRAL JUNIORS DEFEAT WILDCATS IN LAST HALF

Stage Comeback After Trailing at Half and Win

The Marion Wildcats went down to defeat last night before the onslaught of the Central Junior High quintet, losing the short end of an 18 to 12 score. The game was played on the Y. M. C. A. court.

The half ended 5 to 4 with the Wildcats leading. Lowe made all the Wildcats' points in the first half but failed to connect in the final period. After a comeback that swept the Wildcats to their feet, Central Juniors, led by Adams, took the lead and the Adams made four field goals in the last half.

Rubl was unable to play with the Central Juniors last night because of injured back.

Central Juniors will next play St. Patrick High at Kirkpatrick.

I said "Nobody asted you to believe it, and I won't let you look through it anyhow." So she made a fist and said, "I will show you if I will look through it" and she stooped down and turned her face upwards under the stovepipe and Banty hollered, "A lady is looking through the spyglass that wants to see stars," and when the Lost Bag of Tripe heard that he poured a can of water in the pipe, and there was quite a lot of smut came down with it, and I never heard such a screech as Maggie turned loose. My mother and my aunt came running. I thought I was going to get it, but I told my mother that I told Maggie not to look, and they all said the same thing, and when Youniss said so my mother asted Maggie, and she said, "Yessum, he told me not to, but the more he told me not to the more he knew I would." And then she started out of the yard bellering, but my mother took her in and washed her face, and we all went down to the pond and had a snowball battle. Girls spiol everything.

Uncle Wiggily and His Friends

...upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily ...standing in front of his hollow ...bungalow sort of looking at the ...and wondering if ...tickling nose would freeze ...go adventuring, all of a ...once upon a time, the bunny ...gentleman saw a little green ...boy skuddering along the path.

"That's one of the Wogglejigs," said Uncle Wiggily to himself, speaking of the queer little wooden children who ...in Boppy and Um in the bungalow across the garden. "Let me ...now, who would that be—green ...color," Uncle Wiggily thought curiously to himself. "Ah, I remember ...it's Dumple! But why is he skiddooing along in such a funny way?"

Well might Uncle Wiggily ask that, for Dumple, the green boy Wogglejig, was walking very unevenly. He seemed to limp along as if he had a pebble in one of his shoes.

"I know!" said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "Dumple is playing hippity hop at the barber shop!"

But when the rabbit gentleman, who could hop very fast, had caught up to Dumple, the rabbit saw that something had happened. For Dumple had only three green legs instead of four which was the regular number.

"What happened?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, we were playing our scramble game," said the green Wogglejig, "and somebody took off my four legs but they only gave me three back. I think it was my brother Dumple," he added. "Dumple is red, isn't he?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes," replied Bumple, "Dumple has a red head, red legs and everything. I knew I had one of his legs but I thought I got all mine back before it was time to go to school."

"It's almost past time now," said the rabbit, looking at his watch. "You'll be late if you don't hurry, Bumple!"

"That's what I'm afraid of," sadly said the green Wogglejig. "But I can't go any faster on three legs!" and he tried to but nearly fell down.

"Stop! Don't try that!" warned Uncle Wiggily. "You need another leg, Bumple."

"I thought maybe Dumple would have my leg in school just as I once had Izzie's tail. Maybe he forgot and put it in his pocket," said Bumple.

"Maybe," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "So let's hurry to school and find out. And if you go faster you won't be late."

"But I can't go any faster," said Bumple. "You know we tried and—"

"Oh, so we did—I'm forgetting!" broke Uncle Wiggily.

"But I think," said Bumple slowly, as he leaned against a tree, for it was hard for him to stand on three legs, "I think if I had a lollypop I could go much faster."

"Ha! Ha! That's pretty good!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "You want me to buy a lollypop to eat and I suppose you think if you have some candy you will be strong enough to go as fast on three legs as you used to go on four."

"Oh, not at all! Not at all!" exclaimed Bumple quickly. "What I meant was that lollypops come on sticks, just about the size of my leg, only longer. Now if you were to buy a lollypop and take off the candy part—of course, I don't mind eating it if you want me to. And when the candy is eaten up I have the stick left and you could make me a leg."

"So I could!" said Uncle Wiggily. "I never thought of that. I beg your pardon for imputing an ulterior motive to you."

"What's that?" asked Bumple.

"It means lollypop," said the bunny. "You wait here!" So Uncle Wiggily hurried to the candy store and soon came back with a peppermint lollypop on a stick. Bumple ate the candy, which was rather hard work, and then Uncle Wiggily cut the lollypop stick down the right size for a Wogglejig's leg. And when it was in place the bunny said:

'Stop! Don't try that!" warned Uncle Wiggily.

"Hurry now! Hop to school!"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Bumple. "I just happened to think! Today's Saturday and there isn't any school. I guess my leg must be back home." And that's just where it was. But, anyhow, Bumple had a lollypop. And if the sugar spoon will give the cup of tea a drink of milk, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Boppy's bumps.

INVESTMENT BUYING IN STOCKS BOOSTS PRICES

Steels and Rails Higher; A. T. & T. Reaches New Mark on Stock Market

New York, Ja. 8—Standard dividend industrial and railroad stocks were in the forefront of a moderate advance in stock prices in the short session of the stock market today.

The motor stocks and a few of the independent steel shares responded with higher prices to the new reports of favorable developments in their respective industries, while the southern and northwestern rails continued the rally which was in progress at Friday's close.

Firmness in this section of the market today was attributed to investment buying, which has finally overflowed the listed bond market and is now acquiring the better grade of dividend paying industrials and rails for which the outlook seems brightest.

American Telephone and Telegraph was a leader in this group, the stock advancing four points to 155½. Not since 1913 has this stock been above 153 until today, and in the meantime it has dropped as low as 90½.

HOPLEY IS EXONERATED BY ATTORNEY GENERAL

Finds No Violation of Corrupt Practice Act in Campaign Letter

Washington, Jan. 8—The department of justice through Assistant Attorney General O. R. Luhring, today announced its finding that there was no violation of the corrupt practice act in a campaign letter sent out by State Senator James R. Hopley of Bucyrus, Republican candidate for congress from the eighth Ohio district last fall.

The letter, referred to Attorney General John G. Sargent by Representative Brooks Fletcher of Marion, successful candidate for reelection was an appeal to 500 stockholders of the Hadfield-Penfield Steel Co., of Bucyrus, urging them to vote for Senator Frank B. Willis and Mr. Hopley on the strength of what they, if elected, were planning in the way of interesting the government in the stockholders' behalf.

The Hopley letter enclosed one from Mr. Willis, expressing his willingness to "very actively co-operate" with Mr. Hopley "to secure relief for the stockholders if we are both elected."

The department of justice opinion was "that the facts do not fall within the language of the corrupt practice act."

COLLECTION OF TAXES GOES ALONG RAPIDLY

Rush for Payment Expected To Develop Latter Part of Week

Tax collections for property owners of Marion city are continuing in a steady stream. The office of the county treasurer has not been rushed at any time, but it has always been busy since the announcement that city taxes were payable. The big rush to pay taxes is expected to develop the latter part of next week, and the first three days of the week of Jan. 16. The last day for paying city taxes is Jan. 20. Pay day for many Marion workers comes between now and Jan. 20, and most of the taxpayers have to await a pay day to recover from the Christmas splurge before paying the tax bill.

County taxes are as far as ever from collection. There has been no further word as to when the rates will be set.

NOT "THE CLUBBER"

Toledo Detectives Unable to Connect Negro With Outrages

Cincinnati, Jan. 8—Two Toledo detectives were returning to that city today convinced that Joseph Carr, confessed negro slayer of Beulah Purvis, Lawrenceburg, Ind., farm girl, was not the famous "Toledo clubber."

Local officials had notified Toledo police of the similarity between the Purvis attack and the long line of attacks made by the "clubber." The Toledo detectives stated they could not connect the negro with any of the outrages there.

Carr was to be examined by an alienist today in an effort to settle questions as to his sanity.

If we keep the line of conduct straight, we need have no fear of the critic.
